Most families maintain at least small stocks of fresh water, canned foods and a fire extinguisher, as well as having plans to reodezvous at some point after a disaster.

Schools and companies have staodard evacuation plans — some even using sound-effect tapes — as do all emergency services, in-cluding the Self-Defense Forces, which receive regular disaster training. Fire depart-ments call surprise earthquake alerts.

Last month the National Police Agency staged the largest evacuation drill in Japan's history, mobilizing 58,000 policemen, 2,200 emergency vehicles and a squad-ron of helicopters to simulate a response to an earthquake on the scale of the 1923 dis-

The Tokyo Metropolitao Fire Board has designated 121 official open area shelter spots. More than 200 roads to these areas have been surveyed and designated as less dangerous. Schools and other buildings are equipped with first-aid kits. Only in recent years have building codes and improved construction methods permitted the erection of skyscrapers, and there still are not very many insurance companies sell two kinds of fire-damage policies—one for regular fires and one for fires llowing earthquakes.

Tokyo's wards regularly in-crease the number of emergency food-storage sites. Almost all Tokyo's 28,000 taxicabs are equipped with extioguishers to help fight blazes. But since streets might well be blocked with debris, the city has appropriated funds to buy special firefighting aircraft.

Schools stage earthquake catch-phrase contests. One entry: "Never make haste. Just crawl uoder a desk and wait for guidance.

Kohl Says He'd Bring 'Sounder' Policy in Bonn

By CRAIG R. WHITNEY

ST. GILGEN. Austria —
Helmut Kohl, taking a breather in the Alps from his campaign for the West German Chancellorship, put on his hiking boots the other day and climbed one of the milehigh mountains he can see from the terrace of his spacious vacation cottage.

"I shouldn't have tried it todey," he said as he came down in a light rain and doffed a soaked sweatshirt, "When we got to the summit, we were lost in fog."

Seven weeks hefore the general elections, public opin-ion polls indicate that Mr. Kohl has an even chance of replacing Helmut Schmidt at the summit of West German political life. But the swarthy, 46-year-old Christian Democrat, an inherthat politics can be even more fickle than the weather and that the vote could go agaiost him oo Oct. 3.

For now, he is relaxing on the shores of the Wolf-gangsee, a crowded lake re-sort in the foothills of the Austrian Alps near Salzburg. Over a glass of white Moselle wine, he reflected at some length on his philosophy, bis origins and his plans for his country if he is elected.

'Freedom or Socialism' His campaign slogan is an apocalyptic-sounding "Free-dom or Socialism." But wheo questioned on what would be different about West Ger-many if he ruled it instead of Mr. Schmidt and the Social Democrats, Mr. Kohl emphasized style over substance, a change in attitude rather than

His détente, he said, would be "more realistic" than Mr. Schmidt's. His foreign policy would be "calmer" than the dramatic ioitiatives of the last seven years. His economic policy would be "sounder," his fight against terrorism and Communist subversion from within "harder." Mr. Kohl says he believes that "what is good in private life is good in politics too." His personal style is typical of the German middle class: a crucifix of wood hangs from the cottage wall; a haby grand piano belonging to his vife. Hannelore, stands in whie. Hannelore, stands in the corner, with a simplified hook of popular soogs.

His two young sons, Peter, aged 11, and Walter, 13, wander in and out of the room, answer the telephone, whittle. Mr. Kohl's German he speaks no other language is informal in the fashion of his native southern state, the Rhineland-Pfalz, rather more relaxed than Mr. Schmidt's sibilant North Ger-

Contrast With Schmidt Cited "Helmut Schmidt has a definite Kohl complex," he says, "We are so different we come typologically and sociologically from such dif-ferent worlds." Mr. Kohl, who at 6 feet 4 inches stands a full bead higher thao Chan-cellor Schmidt, has lived near Ludwigshafen on the Rhine all his life and says: "I don't have the complexes my op-ponent has — I don't need platform shoes, I have no problem of authority." Mr. Kohl's whole adult life has been politics, and until recent years his reputation was made in the state of Rhineland-Pfalz. He has been Governor there since 1969, presiding over an administra-tion that has reformed the state school system and attracted small and midde-size industry to what had been primarily a rural region.

"When I became head of my party in 1973," he re-called, "the feeling was, "Who is this unfortunate who is going to get stuck with the nomination?" In 1973 the Christian Democrats were directionless and demoralized after defeat at the bands of Willy Brandt the year before. What will he do different-

if he wins in October? "One thing I'd like to accomplish," he said, "is, in con-tacts with other leaders, to bring about a more normal relationship to the Germans." "Helmut Schmidt has been campaigning by lecturing the Italians, the French and the British along the lines of "What's good for Germany is good for the world," be complained. "I'm from ao-other generation, I was only a schoolboy in 1945, and I don't believe the world can keep presenting us with the hill for what happened before then either.

"But as Adenauer once told a group of us young men, it's only prudent for a German to keep his head down-not to go around in sackcloth and ashes, but no lectures on German superiority either." The ability to compromise has been Mr. Kohl's strength. In state politics he has hrought his party, after years of bitter opposition, to pledge cootinuation of the Eastern treaties of Mr. Brandt and Mr. Schmidt, though for elec-treaties a failure. 'We support détente, and arms reductions, but we want the other side finally to live up to its international

tion purposes he calls those commitments," he said. "There's nothing in the existing treatles that provides for innocent people heing shot down on the public streets at the borders," he went on, speaking after a week in which East German border guards shot down a sightseer from Hamburg and a Communist truck driver from Italy at the heavily guarded border.

East Bloc Needs Credits

How would he change the emphasis of the Eastern poli-cies? "The whole East Bloc needs our economic help," he says. The Soviet Union and East Germany are both dependent on credits from the West to finance their trade, and the Communist states now owe West Germany about $8 hillion. Mr. Kohl be-lieves Bonn could gain politi-cal concessions by withholding new credits or calling in existing ooes.

But he does not want a return to the cold war, as his position on German reunification shows.

"The principle is written in our Constitution—that no one has the right to give up a policy whose goal is the eventual reunification of Germany," he pointed out. "But in a realistic view of the world, this is a goal that could take generations heyond my own to achieve

His government, Mr. Kohl said, would emphasize the urgency of unifying Western Europe rather than the Eastern policies' aim of reconciliation with old enemies to the east. He sees the biggest obstacle in the growing apart of economically strong West of economically strong West Germany from her weaker neighbors in France, Italy and Britain.

Help for Italy Foreseen "In the long run," he said. "we cannot achieve the uni-fication of Europe If a so-cial and economic gulf separates one country from another.

"To fill the gap will cost money," he acknowledged. But "particularly, we would be prepared to help Italy," he said. He believes economic aid there could forestall the growth of Communist strength.

His prescription for economic recovery for West Germany, on the face of it, sounds like Mr. Schmidt's "We have to create a climate of coofidence for investors," he says, with tax reductions and premiums for capital

"We have to encourage more job-training programs, with tax incentives or with a combination of state and orivate funds," he went on "We cannot permit the young generation to lose bope — we need the dreams and vision

Germany under Mr. Kobi would be more cautious and less self-assertive than it bas been under Mr. Schmidt. "We have to think about how to live within our means, how to protect what we've achieved so far without necessarily indulging ourselves in the future," he declared. "Under my chancellorship we would march into the future with short, safe steps, perhaps, instead of precipi-tous big leaps."

"It's ugly without them," said Perla Sangioyanni, a mother of six, "We're so used to seeing them in the streets, hearing them laughing and crying and fighting. ing and crying and fighting. Now it's empty."

Life is ogly and empty for nearly everybody these days in this industrial region just north of Milan. On July 10 an accident at the Icmesa chemical plant in nearby Meda blanketed several towns with a poison cloud containing a highly toxic chemical called

The most contaminated area of about 300 acres was completely evacuated, and only a few hundred yards from the Sangiovannis apart-ment barbed wire is stretched across the road and armed soldiers turn back all traffic. In fringe areas such as Meda Sud the adults have been al-lowed to stay, but children under 12 were taken to camps and resorts as a precaution.

Many people here are furious that it took two weeks before the worst-affected area was sealed off. They should have moved us earlier, the day it happened," said a 25-year-old carpenter, one of 730 people who
The carpenter, who is now living in a luxury apartment complex at state expense, said that his 4-year-old daughter had played outside for several days after the accident and had developed skin blotches. After 10 days in the hospital the girl was released, but she still shows father said. Doctors have warned local women in their first three mooths of pregnancy that they might bear deformed infants. The Government has approved abortions for these women, and three have already been performed despite the objections of the Roman Catholic Church. In a crowd gathered at a coffee shop in Meda Sud the other evening everyone agreed that abortion was a good idea.

"Isn't it a sin to bring a deformed child into the world?" said Mrs. Sangiovanni, a friendly, outspoken wo-man. 'My sister has one, and it's very sad to see."

Doctors have also urged couples not to start new pregnancies for six months, but that is a more difficult problem. The Italian practice is to have a child right after marriage, and many young brides do not want to wait, Mrs. Sangiovanni noted. The accident at Icmesa has also affected the economy of the district. Many people here raise their own produce and livestock, but now they cannot eat, or even touch, anything grown local-

"My regular customers come in and will buy only packaged and canned food," added Luigi Rubino, a grocer. "I tell them, how do you expect me to live?"

Warned 20 Years Ago People here say that Ic-mesa was always a health hazard. Antonio Crevisio, a construction worker, became suspicious when a neighbor's sheep died after drinking water near the factory. Resi-dents of Meda Sud complained repeatedly about the refuse and the odor from the factory.

When I moved to this

What kind of woman would spend 110.00 on these boots?

So now we know more on't leap to conclusions. Scrutinize our sketches ver-y carefully. (In the first place, such slender, high-heeled flattery deserves a better name than "boots" as in clodhoppers. We're calling them "bottines" as in French.)

Now let's check your answer. A rich woman, you say? True enough, but not necessarily rich as in Long Green. Rich as in imagination, fashion know-how.

Because these beauties, by designer Margaret Jerrold, have more going for them than just superb leather and superior workmanship. That you take for granted at a price like this.

Ms. Jerrold's bottines have a romantic, Victorian aura. Can't you picture these handsome ones being handed down from a hansom cab? That's using your imagination.

And won't they be perfect for the romantic, full-skirted silhouettes we've been hearing about? That's using your fashion know-how.

But the woman who wears bottines will wear them often. Not just with skirts. With gauchos. With skinny pants tucked inside. And (for fun and super-chic) with a rolled-up pair of twenty-dollar denims!

about this bottine-buyer. She's young. She's witty. She knows a really good fashion value is the one she'll love and be proud of for many a day. She sounds like you? That's what we thought.

Come in and try on the trio. Our side-buttoned spats come in black or wine kidskin. The bow-tie beauty is black patent leather or brown kid. And the zippy cuff is in brown or gray kid with suede. P.S. To

That is the question

With all the slings and arrows that have been aimed at smoking, you may well be wondering why you smoke at all.

If you don't smoke nobody is urging you to start.

But if you do smoke, you may enjoy it so much you don't want to stop.

There's the rub. Because if you do smoke, what do you smoke? The cigarettes of the past provided a lot of smoking pleasure but they also delivered a lot of the 'tar' and nicotine the critics have aimed at.

And most of the new wave brands with low 'tar' and nicotine taste like a lot of hot air.

But now Vantage has entered the scene.

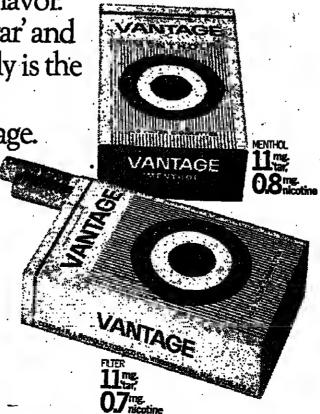

Vantage is the cigarette that succeeds in cutting down 'tar' and nicotine without compromising flavor.

While Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find, it probably is the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

If you smoke, try a pack of Vantage. And if you don't, why not show this ad to someone who does.

It might settle the question.

Tanaka Is Indicted on Bribery Charge in Lockheed Scandal

There, the document states in formal legal language, they asked the Prime Minister to use his office, which included jurisdiction over the Transport Min-istry, to assure the purchase of Lockheed L-1011 Tristar passenger jet aircraft by All Nip-pon Airways, primarily a do-mestic carrier, which transports the most passengers of any Japanese airline.

in return, the formal charge says, they promised to pay him the equivalent of $1.6 million cash in Japanese currency. Less than two months later, on Oct. 10, the airline, which had signed an option to pur-chase McDonnell Douglas DC-10 jets, reversed its decision and said it would buy the Lock-orders, states that the bitbery payments were made in four installments beginning Aug. 10, 1973, and ending March 1, 1974. Toshio Enomoto, Mr. Tanaka's secretary, is alleged to have accepted the payments had to have accepted the payments were in minister at various sites in Tokyo.

A Dime loan makes higher education easie

New, low 11% rate.

· Money as you need it: save with two advances a year.

Now the Dime's educational loan rate is a full percentage point lower than before. That's right for either our College Guaranty Plan where you make one loan arrangement that covers the full 4 years or the Scholastic Loan Plan designed to help you meet current scholastic expenses. The annual percentage rate on both loans has been reduced to 11% a year and that includes life insurance to a qualified borrower who has not reached age 60 on the effective date of the loan.
Dime loans are tailored to your needs also.

Borrow up to $20,000 outstanding at any one time to send your children to elementary, preparatory, vocational school or college. Take the money as you need it for each semester so you're not paying unnecessary interest costs. And spread monthly payments over as long as a 7-year period if you wish.

If your income is $15,000 or more a year, or if the income of all members of your family adds up to this amount, you qualify to apply for one of these loans.

See how Dime's lower rate saves you money.

The airline that flies to more of the world also flies to more of Europe.

Pan Am flies direct to more cities in the world from the U.S. than any other airline.

And Europe being a large part of the world, we also fly to more of its cities than any other U.S. airline.

And to many cities in Europe many times each day from Pan Am's Worldport™ terminal at JFK.

For example, you can fly with us to London at 10:00 a.m., 7:00 p.m., or 9:00 p.m.

To Frankfurt at 6:00 p.m., 7:00 p.m., or 8:45 p.m.

daily at 8:30 p.m. To Amsterdam daily at 9:00 p.m. Or to Brussels daily at 10:00 a.m.

Whichever of these times or cities you choose, you'll fly aboard a 747. It's the only plane we schedule across the North Atlantic.

On many of our 747s we offer first class passengers a chance to dine in our upper-deck dining room. At a table like you would in a fine restaurant. And like in a fine restaurant, it's best to reserve a table. (You should reserve a table when you reserve your flight.)

Besides first class and regular economy fares, we offer 14/21-day fares, 22/45-day fares, and 22/45-day Budget Fares.

Budget Fares can save you about 50% over regular round trip economy fares. (Because these, fares are so low, there are various restrictions and conditions which your travel agent can explain* easier than we can do here.)

The result of all those fares? Well, if you're vacationing on a tight budget we can help loosen your belt a little.

And we can help keep it loosened while you're there. With Pan Am's Two-Weekers, Three-Weekers, and London Showtime tours. Both escorted or unescorted are available. You can read about them in our Europe tour book, PAH 001.,

In September, we'll offer a selection of One-Weekers as well. You can read about those in our One-Weeker tour book, PAH 004. At that i time, we'll also be lowering our fares. Including To Copenhagen daily at 6:00 p.m. To Rome the ones that were already low to begin with.

the transcripts of speeches to the Republican National Convention by Vice President Rockefeller and Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, as recorded by The New York Times, and from the pre-pared text of the keynote address by Senator Howard H. Baker Jr., of Tennessee:

Rockefeller Address

Unaccustomed as I am to being a noncandidate, I greet you tonight as the only noncandidate I know on this program. This is a strange role for me. I've tried to get your nomination for 16 years. I've waged primary fights, platform battles, and conventing contests, and I've enjoyed it. I bope it has belped this party and more particularly helped this America, but I claim no record for my long-time effort. The Olympic honors for the Republican Presidential marathon remain with our good friend Harold Stasseo. Harold, come out, come out. Where are you?

Now one of our pundits commented on my futile quest for the nomination, referring to me as always the Republicant before the commented to the second can bridesmaid but never the bride. Now that's just not me, ladies and geotlemen. I've always wanted to be the groom. But somehow I never could get to the church on time. Being a nnncandidate, however, does not mean that I'm not concerned. I am concerned. I'm concerned about this Republican Party. I'm concerned about America. I'm concerned about equal opportunity for all America. I'm concerned with a world in which buman dignity is recognized and

And I'm also concerned, that Americans do not understand or appreciate the con-tributions of President Ford and his Administration to this nation and the world. Gerry Ford took the Presidency in the worst constitutional crisis this country had aince the Civil War. By calm, deliberate and open action, and hy sheer guts, be kept this nation from being torn apart at the seams. And if it took a football player who played center witbout a helmet to pull us through, I say, thank God we've had him to lead the team.

My friends, my friends, the easiest—my friends, thank you—I want to be sure we're all friends-the easiest thing a President can do with an

who took the firm action thereafter that restored the respect of friends and allies and potential foes as well throughout the world. And as we Baptists would say, Brothers and sisters, that took some doing."

Shrinking Not Growing

This nation needs a strong and vigorous two-party sys-tem. Frankly, this Republican Party of ours has been shrinking not growing, and it's time to face up to this reality. We know we can have a broad-based appeal, we have won four out of the last seven Presidential elections, but we did it with candidates and with campaigns that appealed to the broad spectrum of the American populace-nnt a narrow few. This Republican Party can grow. The nation requires it in dn so, it must expand, them. We must reach out to all groups in our society. Every problem America faces today is an opportunity and at no period in history have the opportunitiea been greater than they are today. If we hut have the vision and the courage to grasp them, we can build an America of opportunity for all people to achieve what their capacity and talent and their visions can produce. If the Republican Party ia to be a viable potential political force, we must seize these opportunities by offering a new spirit of unity and vigorous programs from this Re-

Goldwater Address

As we meet here tonight, one matter should be considered paramount to all our ter is our party's position as the national defender of individual liberty.

What is it that we believe in? We believe in and adhere to the Constitution of the United States. We believe in and engage in free enterprise. We helieve in and practice the proven truth that only through spiritual, ecnnomic and military strength can we preserve the peace that we

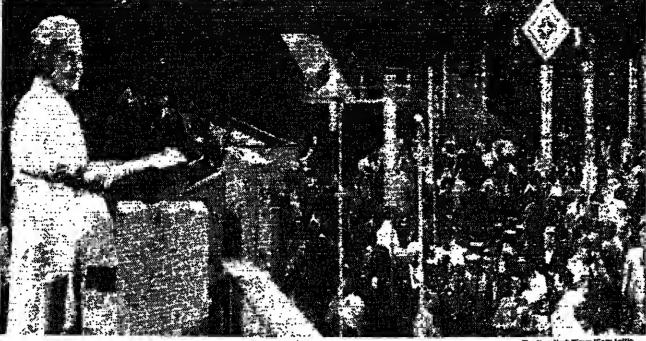

Our enemies are deaf to the whining of weak but they hear loud and clear the voice of strength. So I wish to speak to you tonight not so much as a Republican concerned about the direction of his party but as an American coocerned about the destiny of his country-for we are all Americans and we are all Republicans and what we do here in convention assembled will stretch far beyond ourselves, far beyond this year and our party. Now we are told, depend nn nne man. Depend on Mr. Carter. And I say wby. Why should you or I or any of us depend on any one man to protect and preserve what is so much larger than any one man, namely freedom and all that goes with it. And all that we have fnught for and all that we believe in. Why must all this depend on Mr. Carter? I esk the question and I will admit to being a little afraid. I know the answer. It doesn't depend on him, It depends on us - on all of us Americans. Ours is a country of all people. Not one persoo. But I say I'm afraid. Let me tell you why. For a moment or two, would like to discuss with our approach mean. Allow me then to move Mr. Carter across the screen slowly. Mr. Carter is the man who won a string of primary victories by ranting against Wasbington. Promising to cut the cost of government and balance the national budget. But Mr. Carter is also the man who endorsed wholeheartedly a Democrat platform which would have en-acted add $125 billion to the annual cost of government.

And I might add now be finds that his campaign is sbort $150,000.

Quotes Carter on Taxes

Mr. Carter is the man wbo told the Democrat convention that our tax system was a disgrace to the human race. But, Mr. Carter was also the man who told a group of New York money men that this disgrace abould continue for at least another year while he studied the system and adopted a go-slow policy on matters of tax reform. And at the same time he was saying these things, a Democrat Congress refused to reform the tax muddel In fact, they made it worse and opened more loopboles.

Mr. Carter is the man whn time and time again pledged to reduce the number of Federal agencies if he were elect-ed; but he's also the man after spending several hours with Ralph Nader decided there was room for one more super-billion-dollar agency designed to attract votes from consumers. What Mr. Carter never sems to get around to is the fact that his own party members in Congress are the architects and perpetrators of the things he has denounced to win votes. What Mr. Carter offers us is the same old thing that Democrats have always offered us: more government which will lead to one man with more power and a nacitizenry with less tional

Oh, I've scen Mr. Carter'a future, and I found it wanting. I've seen his kind of government issue regulations that say no wheo the people say yes. I've seen Mr. Car-ter's future, and I don't believe in it.

In fact, I might say that in my life, this country, the United States, has never lived in an era of so much promise in the field of peace, and 1 cion't want to see it destroyed by a man and men who know ansolutely nothing about foreigo policy.

Oh, I've seen Mr. Carter's kind of devilment before. It was Mr. Carter'a kind of devilment that told us in Boston that we couldn't send our children to the school next docr. It was his kind of devilment, that told us in Missouri that it could give our young daughters abortions withnut cur even knowing about it.

It was Mr. Carter's kind of government that told us in St. Louis that it could tear down cur neighborhoods. It told our military in Soutoeast Asia not to win, and forbade them to wio. And I want nn

Calls It a Disaster

In short, this is where we battle for the freedom of the individual, and let me remind you again our party stands for freedom and strength. It is what we believe in and it is what Americans want. Make no mistake about it. We are the last best hope on earth for sound, free government, and we must fight t orealize that hope before it is too lae. We're not here to fight and argue with each other. We have two of the best candidates ever to come before a convention. Our job is to nick one and then all of us have to work and work and work to elect him. We don't need or need Mr. Carter and his country is al labout. We want freedom and continued peace.

Baker Address These have been difficult years for the Republican party. The Watergate era was a painful time for all of us. You know that, I certainly know that.

Some in our party have gone through a crisis of falth, even wondering if the Republican Party had the atrength to survive. But, we do. And we do because we faced our problems with honor and dignity. We performed as the country would expect us to perform. We did ant shy away from our duty in that difficult time, even though we knew that Watergate would be embarrassing, humiliating, and even potenwe took a real drubbing in the 1974 elections because of

But since then, America has learned a lot about other political abuses in prior Democratic Administrations. and eveo in the present Democratic Congress—abuses of personal liberties, invasions of privacy, and political mistype. But there is one big difference. We faced nurs. and in so doing, we raised country's expectations bonorable Government. But we are still waiting for the Democrets to face theirs.

And yet, now they are running around rattling the dusty old skeletons of Watergate all over again.

They can rattle those skeletons until the bones fall out, but it is not going to work. And let me tell you why: Because the issues in 1976 are Republican issues. Because the Republican record in 1976 is one we can be proud to run nn, and one we deserve to win on. Because Republicans are now looking to the future of this country. while Democrats are still chasing the ghosts of the

So, to those in the opposition who day after day try to exploit the tragedy of Watergate for partisan purposes, and who pretend that one party, or one person, has had a monoply on mistake, or bad judgment, I say: You know better. I know better. The people know better.

The Issue of Government

Let's put away past history, let's put aside hypocrisy. In this election, let's talk about what does divide the parties in 1978. And let's make Goveroor Carter level with the American people be-fore the election about exact-

The issue this year isn't virtue. It isn't love, or patriotism, or compassion. These are the common concerns of all of us, regardless of party. The issue this year, quite simply, is this How much government is too much government? How many laws are too many lawa? how much taxation is too much taxation? How much coercion is too much coercion? We have greater economic strength, greater scientific and technological strength, than any nation, any time, anywhere, has ever had-and let's not forget the sources of that strength. It's not the government, it's the people of this country who provide that strength, and it's through the free will of a free people that we will continue to build that strength.

After the worst recession of the postwar period, our economy is in a solid, healthy recovery—with jobs up, in-comes up, and inflation dnwn -and it's recovering because a Republican Administration had the courage when it counted—to stand up against a Democratic Congress, to vetn reckless spending and resist the clamorous calls for controls and rationing. Throughout our history, America bas been remarkahly right on the major decisions that have confronted her. Not only because she has often bad wise leaders, but also because the people's judgment and wisdom, the common sense of America, has often supplied those answers. The two-party system in the United States has served us well as the sensing mechanism by which the common sense cf America has been determined. And, if we are going to meet those challenges the future, averting the nerils and fully realizing our orcmise, we must continue to hearken to the country's common sense—to those shared percentions, those basic ideals, that reflect the -poular wisdom and embody the national will.

Fear of Big Government

The common sense of Amerca today is that even a freely elected government can be-come appressive government. The common sense of Amertoo much; it Interferes too much; it bullies too much.

And because this is the common sense of America, the Democratic Party has four big problems this year. The first of those problems is Jimmy Carter. The second is Wal-ter Mondale. The third is the Democratic Congress. And the fourth is that the American people don't want the kind Government they would get from a cozy alliance between the big-spending Demo-cratic Congress and a Carter-Mondale Administration.

Party, which for years has fought an uphill battle to limit the size of Government, to limit the role of Government, to protect the individual against the encroachments of Governments. And we say, We hear you,

America, and we understand. The idea of limited government is not one that we suddenly embraced when it became popular, but one that we preached when it was unpopular. We preached it because we shared the concern of Thomas Jefferson who warned his countrymen that "the natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and government to gain ground." We preach it because our aim is not the sullen calm of a regimented society, but the mutual respect of a free society. And we don't just preach it. We also practice it

Jimmy Carter says he will never lie to us, but Jimmy Carter is the nominee of the party which gave us the original credibility gap. And the Jimmy Carter who talks about running against Washington is the nominee of the party which has created more than 1,000 new Federal programs and planned them so poorly that they made "Washington" sound like a dirty word. At last month's Democratic convention, Carter made it clear in bis platform and bis acceptance speech that the same old tired approaches will be tried again. While be still bobs and weaves and straddles a lot of the issues, it is now clear that the Carter-Mondale politics will be more of the same: more programs, more promises, more controls, more spending, more taxea, more Government. It is the same old road.

And we have been down that road, and we have seen where it leads, and don't you let them do it to us again. Rise in U.S. Spending

It is no coincidence that for 40 years of the last 44 years, the Democratic Party has been in control of Congress. And in those 44 years, Federal spending has risen from less than $4 hillion to nearly $400 billion.

When it comes to big Government. Franklin Roosevelt was a piker compared to what Governor Carter's friends in the Democratic Congress have been giving us lately. Just consider this: This year alone, Continuing a search that is made more difficult by widely scattered housing of delegations that was brought about by Ransas City's shortage of hotel space, Mr. Reagan later took his entourage 12 miles south to Grandyiew, Mo. to address the Virginia group in its motel there.

This evening he and his wife, Nancy, attended a Youth for Reagan and Young Americans for Freedom reception in downtown Kansas City.

As for the others he addressed. Alaska has 17 Ford delegates and 2 uncommitted, while Virginia has 34 for Mr. Reagan, 13 for Mr. Ford and

Rockefeller, on the speakers' schedule of the Republican convention tonight, a good deal of the "old" Barry Goldwater whose pungent prose stirred partisan passions a dozen years ago when he was the party's candidate

The applause was mixed with ap-preciative laughter when in reference to the Democratic caodidate, Jimmy Carter, he said, "I have seen Mr. Carter's

But there was a touch of pathos in his reception. Mr. Goldwater's applause lines were as peppy as they always bad been, but he spoke above a hubbub on the floor, a far cry from the rapt attention the faithful bad paid to their candidate in 1964.

Then his supporters, who had built np delegate strength state by state while many party regulars were looking the other way, had booed and hooted as Mr. Rockefeller, then the Governor of New York, spoke in support of a proposed platform amendment denouncing extremism. And Mr. Goldwater, in his acceptance speech bad said, "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. . Moderation in the

Stern Plays Rochberg,

BY DONAL HENAHAN

LENOX, Mass., Aug. 16-There is an uneasy feeling among some contemporary composers and other musicians that their art may have taken a wrong turning some-where around World War II. A few, of course, would dis-cern the turning point ear-lier, around World War I. And a few other radical conservatives might want to place it even further back in time, around, say the Cru-

For George Rochberg, whose Violin Concerto was per-formed by Isaac Stern and the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon, the time to re-examine seems to be the peak years of Bar-tók and Prokofiev. That is, the late 30's and early 40's. Mr. Rochberg's concerto was composed in 1974 and was given its premiere performance by Mr. Stern and the Pittshurgh Symphony the fol-lowing year. This reviewer is in no position to say bow it sounded at that first exposure, but In its Boston Symphony premiere, under the baton of Seiji Ozawa, the concerto turned out to he nothing less than a popular

The work is long hy mod-ern-music standards: 40 minutes. Few enough componers nowadays know how to cover a time span of 15 minutes, because of the obsession with economy and non repetition that Anton Webern's genius imposed on postwar music, But Mr. Rochberg's Concerto is 19th century in length as well as in mood and instrumental technique. The solo part is unrelenting and exhausting — perhaps a bit too much for the good of either the violinist or his listeners, in fact — hut Mr. Stern car-ried it all off with even more than his customary vigor and

Mr. Rochberg categorizes his concerto as basically ton-al (though the tonalities are often submerged in a thick chiomaticism) and he says he has consciously tried to work in the violin concerto tradition that extends from Mozart through Schoenberg. But the impression that one took away from this performance was of a composer wbo had gone back to Bartók, essentially, to think it all over. A phrase or two in the second movement sounded like quotations from the Concerto for Orchestra.

As in his Third String Quartet and other recent pieces, Mr. Rochberg has decided to compose in a style that few of his academic con-celebration bas been the culmination of a long love affair that Mr. Alley has had with the music of this modern

"Reflections in D" showed

Threading through both the matinee and evening performances were several oew works danced and choreo-

was a wonderful one for the smaller company, but the works that they brought were basically at a workshop evel.

They were missing an indi-vidual accent for the most temporaries can sympathize with. Thus a work such as this concerto is an artistically and professionally daring effort. But with the aid of Mr. Stem, Mr. Ozawa and the undauntable Bostonians, the composer's effort was rewarded on this occasion by considerable public affection. That doesn't happen much with new music.

The Rochberg performance was part of Tanglewood's five-day Festival of Contemporary Music, which contin-ued last night in the Theater-Concert Hall with a program of mostly older works. One, in fact, was elderly: Nikos Skalkottas's Octet (1931), a neatly crafted serial piece that oow seems remarkahly thin and hloodless.

The most recent work of the night, Chinary Ung's "Mohori" (1974), also sounded thin, hut in its own exotic way, though Janice Meyer-son's handling of the wordless mezzo-soprano part did oot seem to be at fault. Mr. Ung, a Cambodian who has studied with Chou Wen-Chung, George Crumb and Mario Davidovsky, mirrors in this work some of bis teach-ers' mannerisms without working out his material into anything of auhstance. At its best, however, "Mohori" had in this first performance a gossamer fragility in color, texture and sonority that se-duced the ear, even if the impressions too easily slipped From the 60's came Betsy Jolas's "D'un Opera de Voy-age," a tightly organized work for chamber orchestra that alternated violent outhursts with tenuous delicacy in a style that recalled the earlier serial abstraction of Boulez. From the same decade came "Jeux" (1963) hy Theodore Antoniou, who is assistant director of the festival and who conducted the entire night's program. Mr. Antoniou's "games" involved a cellist, David Heiss, exploiting extreme reaches of such technical devices as glissando, vibrato, pizzicato and tremolo, often in ways that put one in mind of the ear-shat-tering works of Xenakis, Mr. Antoniou's Grecian compatriot. A lot of aural excite-ment was churned up by the virtuosic Mr. Heiss, though the nature of the work struck one as an exploitation of surface effects, rather than deeply communicated music.

The program was rounded off with Dallapiccola's "Una Piccola Musica Notturana" (1954) and Christian Wolff's complished recent works "The Mooche." It had glamour that oozed from every gesture of its four celebrated women. Estell Spurlock tapped out the rbythmic life of Florence Mills, and Sarita Allen as Marie Bryant quite simply knocked her admirers flat with well-placed bip thrusts as she danced "The Shepberd." Enid Britteo was the devout and songful Mahalia Jackson and Judith Jamison was the stormy and sultry Bessie Smith. She wielded her shawl like a matador's cape, with cunning and panache. The whole had the finish and polish that characterized a glittering era in the theater and clubs.

"Three Black Kings" made a moving statement about men of peace, and the eve-ning concluded with Louis Falco's funny and slightly dizzy "Caravan." It has a wonderful solo lead for Miss Jamison that goes on and on and a happy clog dance for Mr. Williams that could light up any evening. The official Ellington week is over, but the celebration will go oo as long as Mr. Ailey has some | dancers and a studio to set

faced again, as the 70's brough: a wersening of the institution's financial prob-lems, and the museum hired Richard Weinstein, an archi-Mr. Weinstein, a long-time memoer of the Lindsay administration's urban-design team, brought in other consultants, including Donald H. Elliatt, former chairman of the City Flanning Commis-sion and now a lawyer for the museum, who wrote the legislation creating the Trust for Cultural Resources. The team of consultants proposed a package including a $23 million spartment tower, a $17 millinn muscum empansion and a lot of claborate fiscal calculations that promised that, if all went well, the museum would reach a break-even point.

Private Builders

The package provided for the retention of a private real-estate developer to do the actual building of the condominium tower, which would largely be financed tirrough conventional mort-SOUTCES. The Arlen Realty and Development Corperation, the company whose Olympic Tower on Fifth Avenue is in some ways a model for the Mu-seum of Modern Art project, has been working closely with the museum so far, but the tower, and it has not yet signed a formal agreement to proceed as developer-which, if it comes, would legally be signed with the Trust for Cultural Resources, not the museum itself.

No architect has yet been chosen, although the city's been suggesting that Kevin Roche, John Dinkeloo and Associates, I. M. Pei and Partners and Mitchell/Giurgola Associates are the lead-ing contenders. Philip Johnson, architect of most of the existing museum building, has been excluded from con-sideration, as have all of the other architects on the museum's board of trustees.

For the Project

The arguments for the project all center on what Mr. Weinstein calls "taking advantage of what we have." "We don't want to get out of the culture business for the real-estate business," he explained. "But in our air space we have a sleeping asset, and in this way we can put it to work to help keep our cultural facilities alive."

The prime reason for the project, advocates assert, is its ability to strengthen the museum's existing facilities, both by providing sounder financing and by making expansion possible. "We have the most important collection of modern art in the world and no room to show said William S. Paley, chairman of the museum's board and chariman of CBS

More Construction Jobs

Supporters of the project with the museum so far, but tural Resources plan would it is believed that Arien has not divert any actual tax revenues from the city even say that the Trust for Culthough it, rather than the city, would collect tax pay-ments. This, they say, is because the condominium tower would never be built as a more conventional speculative venture. Thus the city would not lose tax revenue as it would if a presarchitectural community has ently taxable building were converted to tax-exempt status, for example.

Advocates further point out that the project would bring much-needed construction jobs to the city, and that by strengthening the museum, which is one of the city's major attractions for visitors, the economy of the city at large would benefit.

They assert that the success of Olympic Tower indicates a continuing market for luxury condominiums in the neighborhood of Fifth Avenue and the 50's. And they point to the value of the project as a model for other cultural institutions in similar trouble. The legislation would permit nther trusts to be set up, but the requirements for them -would be strict, and advocates brush off suggestions that trusts would be set up willy-hilly by institutions all over the city and state and that they would thus become major forces in real-estate develop-

As as safeguard against cultural institutions assuming control of development through trusts, the legislation requires the mayor, rather than the museum, name the trust's five-member board of trustees, and that no more than one member be associated with the museum.

Against the Project

The project's critics nnly rarely argue, as might be ex-pected, that the mix of art and commerce is by definition a bad thing, they gen-erally concede the museum's dire straits and agree that some businesslike proposal will be the only way out.

But they dn express con-cern over what, to many, is a particularly high ele-ment of risk in this project. They argue that the success of Olympic Tower may have been due more to the in-volvement of the late Aristotle Onassis as a partner than to the large size of the available market; the recent financial failure of the Galleria condominium tower on East 57th Street bears this out, critics believe, and some suggest that the muis keeping company with business executives whose idea of risk is a lot looser than its own should "Like an aging belle convinced that she must soon cash in on what nature or circumstance has bestowed uoon her, the Modern has taken to flirting with rich, dangerous men-private de-velopers," wrote Suzanne Stephens in an analysis of the project in Artforum mag-

sources setup, which many feel shifts execessive power away from conventional planning sources, even with mandated safeguards; some of the legislators debuting the issue in Albany said they foresaw the possibility that trusts could be used by private developers as fronts for projects that might otherwise be publicly unaccept-The tax exemption for the project is another source of dispute. Cruics concede that this particular project would never come to pass except under this special mechanism, but they argue that the market for condominium apartments is limited and that if this project is not built, a similar building might be built privately and that it could be able to provide tax income for the city. It is not, critics admit, too It is not, critics admit, too likely a possibility—but the tax issue awakened considerable passions in Albany among legislators concerned about the appearance of a provision aiding a museum at a time when the city was closing schools and bospitals, and much of the opposition and much of the opposition to the program was, legis-lators conceded, based on the poor public image that it presented.

cerns, not the legislation it-self, but the means by which the museum, in partnership with a real estate developer, would go about bringing the project to pass. The Museum of Modern Art has traditionally presented itself as the institution in the nation most concerned about hringing quality design into every-day life; it had the first architecture and design department of any museum in the United States, and its own building is considered a significant work of modern

WINGS OF STRING TOnight is balalaika night at Damrosch Park, Lincoln Center, with a stageful of performers on that exoticsounding Russian instrument going ioto action at 8 o'clock. The Balalaika Symphonic Orchestra, which has acquired a loyal following from appearances around the metropolitan area, also happens to be the only band of its kind in the United States. The free program leans generously toward Russian composers, in addition to vocal solos and other fea-tured instruments against a strumming string background. The regular conduc-tor, Alexander Kutin, is wielding the batoo.

Music: Firkusny Plays Rare Mozart

Two of the less familiar piano concertos by Mozart were played last night in Alice Tully Hall by Rudolf Firkusny. The occasion was, of course, the annual Mostly Mozart Festival, that indis-pensable summer series which helps New Yorkers maintain sanity and proportion during the hot summer months. Less familiar: But that does not mean they are that much popular ones in the Mozart canon. Indeed, it is hard to see why the Concerto No. 18 in B flat (K. 456) is not on the all-time hit parade. It breathes the spirit of "Le Nozze di Figaro," it has a slow movement that can tear you apart, it has effective virtuoso figurations and the cunning construction that Mozart alone could bring to

If the D major Concerto (No. 16, K. 451) is not on this level, it too is a con-structional masterpiece and a lighthearted romp. It also has some musicological importance. Mozart filled out a few measures of the solo part for his sister, and those measures give an important clue about the way Mozart himself fleshed out the skelepage that has come down

Leonard Slatkin conducted the smal orchestra, and provided strong support for Mr. Firkusny. It always is a pleasure to hear the Mozart piano concertos played by a skilled artist with greatly reduced forces. Years back, Rudolf Serkin and Alexander Schneider collaborated on this kind of Mozart, and it was to many a revelation. Up to then, most Mozari concertos had been played to the accompaniment of a full, romantic symphony orchestra. Now one could admire the taextures, balances, byplay of piano against or-chestra.

So it was last night, under Mr. Kirkusny's skilled fingers, and the lively conducting of Mr. Slatkin, Mr. Firkusny gave both concertos a limpid performance, but that do-s not mean the strength of the music was slighted. Nor the virtuosity. Quite properly, Mr. Firkusny made a big thing out of the exhibitionistic passages. Mozart himself did when he played.

There was also a rare unanimity between sololst and conductor in certain textual problems. As often as not, conductor and soloist in a

It was very elegant and forceful playing, from soloist and orchestra. Mr. Slatkin is a young talented conductor with a good sense of rhythm, an ability to shape a phrase with personality, and the in-ner strength to make an orchester follow his wishes. He started the evening with three movebents from Beethoven's "Prometheus," and that was pleasant. Usually only the or-chestra is heard, but there is much lovely music elsewhere in the score.

Closing the program was Haydn's "Drum Roll" Symphony—No. 103 in E flat and again Mr. Slatkin did not disappoint. He led a refined, well-turned performance. The important thing was that the interpretation. Christoph Eschenbach at Piano at Mostly Mozart

By JOHN ROCKWELL Christoph Eschenbach, the German pianist, appended a Mostly Mozart recital Sun-day night at Alice Tully Hall to his previous week's four appearances as soloist and conductor there. It was an always interesting if not always emotionally winning Speaking generally, Mr. Eschenbach falls into the category of modern young planists who espouse an acalytically correct, cool linearity in their playing. But min from the more clinical extremes of that category are a certain contained expressiveness within that style and a calculated willingness to indulge in melodrama when the situation seems to call for it. The trouble is that on the basis of Sunday's program, be's better at delicacies than Romantic theatrics.

What this meant in specific terms was that he played most of the program better than he played the first two movements of Beethoven's "Pathétique" Sonata and the opening Mozart Sonata No. 12 In F (K. 332).

The Mozart suffered because a crystalline approach demands crystalline playing, and Mr. Eschenbach's fingers hadn't warmed up enough to propel the runs in a properly purling fashion. In the succeeding Mozart Andante in F (K. 616), originally m at for a small mechanical organ, he caught the static quality of the music neatly, and then in Mozart's Sonata No. 13 in B flat (K. 333)—and is: the last movement of the "Pathétique" and the concluding "Moon-light" Sonata of Beethoven. for that matter—he delivered a most persuasive case for his approach.

Mecking lost only one game—to Boris Spassky, the former world champion while winning eight and drawing 10. From the third round on, he was never out of the lead, although Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia pursued him closely the whole way, pulling even from

Hort shared second prize with Lev Polugaevsky of the Soviet Union, each scoring 12½-6½. They were not sure of their qualification for the candidates matches uotil the last round, when Vitaly Zeshkovsky of the Soviet Uoico, a half-point behind, struggled seriously but could not obtain more than a draw with Lidek Pachman of West

Thus, Hort's draw with Zoltao Ribli of Hungary and

Deceptive Play Is Usually One Bridge: Most Satisfying to Experts

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

If you ask an expert to name the bid or play that gives him most satisfactioo you might expect e oumber of answers: a subtle bidding WEST inference in a competitive auction; the climax of a series of a carefully planned technical bidding sequence; an outrageous psychic that leaves the opponents reeling; a plan of play that saves an apparently hopeless contract; or the execution of a rare and difficult aqueeze.

The most likely answer, bowever, is the deceptive play in defense that diverts the declarer from ao obvious line of play that is due to succeed. The best example in this category this year was reported recently from a tournament in California. It is clear that six spades is an excellent cootract and North-South bad no trouble getting there after an arti-ficial opening two-club bid. North began with an artificial response of two dia-monds, coocealing his strength as many experts do with a positive hand. After his partner had shown a powerful spade suit by bidding them twice, he used Blackwood before settling in six spades.

Singleton Heart Led Assuming that West does not solve the declarer's problems with a club lead, South has two chances. He can try for a heart trick and if this fails he can fall back oo the club finesse. It is easy to see that as the cards lie the heart play fails, but the reserve play in club socceeds. But when West led his singleton heart, Mike Smolen of Los Angeles; as East, found a way to make South think that he could score a heart trick and therefore did not oeed a club finesse. When South played the heart jack from dummy, Smolen had summed up the situation quickly. He knew that his partner's lead was a singleton, and that he would win the first trick. He also knew that his partner beld no honor cards with any trick-taking poten-

Club Eight Returned

Smolen's solution was to win the first trick with the heart ace instead of the queen and fire back the club eight. He had made South present of a heart trick, but it was a Greek gift. Naturally, the declarer did not choose to risk a club finesse for be was already sure of 12 tricks—or so he thought.
He grabbed his club ace and cashed the K-A of spades to end in the dummy. But when he then confidently threw his club queen on the beart king—"know-ing" that West held the heart queen-West produced his remaining trump to dethe slam. The Machiaveilian Smolen collected 100 points and a dirty look from a shaken declarer.

BORN ON THE FOURTH OF JULY By Ron. Kovic. 208 pages. McGraw-Hill $7.95. When Ron Kovic, the author of "Born on the Fourth of July," appeared in his wheelchair on the rostrum of the Democratic National Convention this year to nominate an "amnesty candidate" for the Vice Presidency, the television cameras panned the delegates' faces. Some - the younger ooes, mostly-were visibly moved, some dutifully attentive. But on the faces of many was barely veiled hostility. as though Mr. Kovic's long hair, his Move-ment rhetoric had loosed seething memories of Chicago in 1968. But it was not 1968; there was no need of Mayor Richard J. Daley's police, no need to harden themselves against their kids running amok. Yet the appearance of this voice from the past was sufficiently incongruous amid the Jimmy Carter love barbecue to be a little jolting.

Mr. Kovic's last appearance at a national political convention hadn't been so orderly. In 1972, as one of a group of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, he had traveled to Miami Beach and wangled floor creden-tials for the night of President Nixon's acceptance speech. He bluffed his way down front, made shameless plays for television attention and got himself interviewed, hassled back the security guards who were hassling him (I'm a Vietnam veteran and I fought in the war! Did you fight in the war!") and finally, with two comrades, channed, Stop the bombing!" while Mr. Nixon spoke. At that point the security guards wheeled the vets off, but not before one delegate, shouting "Traitor!" spit full in Mr. Kovie's face. Mr. Kovie should have then learned that just because you are a crippled vet, the world doesn't owe you a hearing. After all, in a previous antiwar demonstration io California, an undercover policeman posing as a demonstrator had suddenly declared Mr. Kovic under arrest, dumped him out of his wheelchair and soundly beat him up, while delivering appropriate patriotic sentiments.

Programmed on L.I.

Ron Kovie had come a long way since he was born on July 4, 1946, to blue-collar narents in Massapequa, L.I. Like a lot of American boys, he grew up programmed just crazy enough to think war was killing gloriously for your country, as the movies showed it, that patriotism was John F. Kennedy telling you not to ask what your country could do for you, that Vletnam and anti-Communism and serving one's eountry were all bound up together and that the Marine Corps builds men. In 1964, at the age of 18, he joined up.

Sometimes in the book he speaks of himself in the third person, sometimes in the first; he reaches back and forth in time, yet always approaching the ultimate agony. The book begins a few moments after he is hit; much later we learn he had been wounded twice, the first, the "millinn-dollar wound" that would make him a homeward-bound hero and that exhilarates him so that he keeps firing, standing out there alone while the bullets fly about him. Then, "a loud crack went off next to my right car as a 30-caliber slug tore through my right shoulder, blasted through my lung, and smashed my spinal eard to pieces . . . All I could feel was the worthlessness of dying right here in this place at this moment for nothing."

After that he was transported to a field hospital, a charnel house of horribly wounded men and frightened teen-agers crying, "Mother!" Through the shock and pain is medic demands his name, rank and serial number before giving him morphine) he can only try to live; much later, back in the States io a military hospital, he gradually apprehends his true condition, which is only partly alive
After doing time in some rat-ridden
Veterans Administration hospitals he returned home, where his father had built with his own hands, a ramp for a wheelchair. He drank himself into insensibility very night, spent aimlessly his ample disability benefits, tried college and dropped out and finally headed to California. A priest in Vietnam had told him, "Some-times no one will want to hear what you're going through. You are going to have to learn to carry a great burden and most of your learning will be dooe alone." The learning was mostly alone at first, and hard. He describes indelibly being put on display by the local American Legion at a Memorial Day parade; there was no cheering; the people lining the streets stared at him silently, and theo he was placed on the speakers' platform and not asked to say a word. In a bitter poem, he calls himself "Memorial Day on

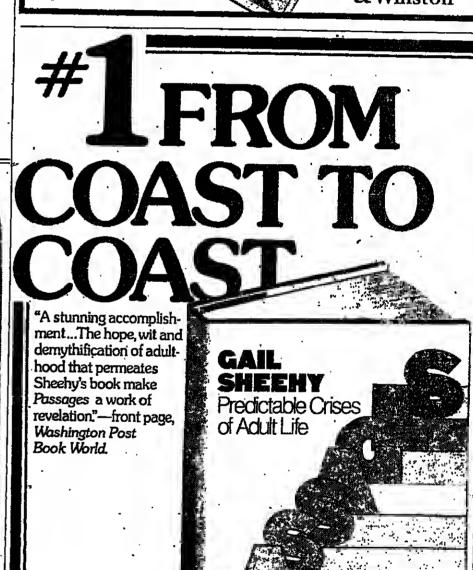

Shouting and Shaking

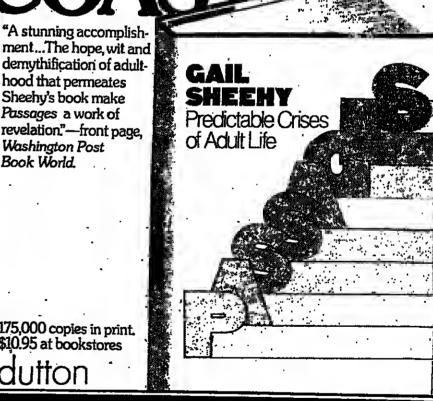

Salvation of a sort comes in California, where he hooks up with a veterans-againstthe-war movement, and makes speeches, displaying his useless body, as he once put in it on the line for his country. "Here!" he screams to passers-by at a demonstration, "Look at the war!" That is the demonstration at which he is beaten up; afterwards he withdraws and lives alone, think-ing that "they" had made a "thing of him . . . a young thing to run through the meat grinder" and of how be bad forgotten "how to be a nice person."

Once again the fraternity of his fellow vets lifts him out, and he scores his moment of glory, shouting down the President. And afterward sits in his chair shaking and crying. At the end of the book, his memories of Vietnam wind down, re-solve themselves into the time wheo, a gung-ho sergeant, he accidentally killed a corporal in his own outfit; another time when his outfit fired by mistake on a hut full of civilians, killing them all, and his last moment of Audie Murphy glory before the crack of the bullet that snaps bis life forever, a green shoot broken off the braneh.

The images of Roo Lovic's life are realized in a simple indelible procession: they are there, impersonal, classic and timeless. He has made his life, his body stand for all the young lives and bodies who were hurt in that war: "Here! Look at the war!" As we rapidly forget, let's look briefly, just one more time.

'Moderate Alternative'...

It may be fashionable to deprecate the importance of party platforms. True, if a platform is regarded as either a contract between a party and the electorate or as a dependable forecast of immediate Government policy, such skepticism is well based.

In reality, a platform is a barometer of a party's intellectual and political mood. It is also a party's judgment of the nation's needs and rival pressures and, finally, a symbolic statement of aspirations. In these terms, a platform is a significant political event.

The platform to be voted on at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City tonight begins with a sharp attack on its Democratic counterpart, adopted in New York last month, and then describes itself as "a responsive and moderate alternative." It is moderate in that it fails to reflect completely the immoderate ideological passions of North Carolina's Senator Jesse Helms and other outriders who have been harrying the party's

By any other standard, it is a remarkably conservative document. Indeed, it coherently and consistently articulates a right-wing view of the nation's needs. One can disagree with that view but one can bafdly accuse the G.O.P. platform writers of evasiveness. This is a forthright statement.

The party deals with tax reform, for example, by urging the enlargement of certain existing loopholes and the creation of new ones. It urges new systems of accelerated depreciation, an end to taxation of dividends, and tax credits for parents who pay college tuition bills. These and similar proposals would enormously widen the budget deficit. Since the platform also reaffirms the traditional Republican belief in a balanced budget, the, contradiction is reconciled by a demand for cuts in

The platform is equally unequivocal in endorsing constitutional amendments that would restrict abortions, permit nonsectarian prayers in the public schools, and ban court-ordered school busing. It condemns gun control, even through so mild a measure as registration of firearms, asserting that mandatory sentences for gunrelated crimes are "the only effective solution."

Endorsing catastrophic illness protection for all, the platform urges that only private health insurance plans be used to achieve this objective. Similarly, it relies npon the private sector as the major force in meeting urban needs and relieving unemployment, condemning even action by the Federal Government as employer of last resort for the jobless.

The platform's language concerning the environment and natural resources reveals a strong bias in favor of the claims of private economic Interests. Land-use planning is described as "a unique responsibility" of state and local government; public lands should be kept open for mineral exploration and for mining; clear-cutting is specifically endorsed as a technique for the management of the national forests. ..

... 'Moral' Substitute

Although there are differences in style and emphasis between President Ford and Ronald Reagan, their shared conservatism enabled their adherents to reach agreement on the domestic planks of the platform. Only the deep hostility of some Reagan supporters toward the Equal Rights Amendment is likely to produce a serious floor fight on a domestic issue.

Foreign policy is another matter. The platform as drafted in committee provides a relatively sober, unexceptional defense of the policies of the Ford-Nixon period -although both Presidents as well as Secretary of State Kissinger remain unnamed ghostly figures. There are strong endorsements for continuance of the NATO alliance, the U.S. military presence in South Korea, close relations with Canada and Japan, and the longstanding commitment to Israel's defense.

But this language clearly fails to satisfy the ultranationalists and unreconstructed cold warriors who have rallied to Mr. Reagan's banner. In their view of the world, a foreign policy based on a careful defense of discernible national interests is a paltry, defeatist enterprise. They believe that America's will must prevail in every disputed issue, great or small. Moreover, they envisage this country as the moral guardian of mankind, required to unshackle every captive and right every wrong.

To express these emotions, Mr. Reagan and his associates plan to offer a substitute foreign policy plank. Interestingly enough, they bave chosen to shy away from specific but spurious issues such as the future of the Panama Canal and the relative balance of military power between the United States and the Soviet Union that Mr. Reagan raised in the primaries.

Instead, the Reagan forces have put forward language raising symbolic "moral" issues such as President Ford's snub of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn and the signing of the Helsinki accord.

There is irony in this proposal. Several of the delegates sponsoring this "Morality in Foreign Policy" plank were active in the Platform Committee trying to put the party on record as accepting white minority rule of predominantly black countries in southern Africa. In practice, their commitment to morality, liberty and the rule of law in world affairs is something less than universal.

The Yunich Shuffle

Several weeks ago, David L. Yunich, chairman of the deficit-ridden Metropolitan Transpertation Authority, startled students of transit finance by predicting that the 50-cent fare could be maintained through the end of 1977. The prediction was surprising because only last April the M.T.A. chairman was warning that the fare would have to be raised to 65 cents by next spring unless alternative financing were found to make up for $125 million in Federal subsidies formerly advanced under the abandoned 'Beame shuffle."

Chairman Yunich credited the turnabout in M.T.A. fortunes to "a superior management job" which, he said, had achieved savings of $113 million during the past year. But that did not really appear to solve the mystery of the disappearing deficit because the chairman had already claimed $100 million in savings back in April when he was still sounding the alarm for fiscal troubles ahead.

Perhaps the secret to the Yunich alchemy lies in the announcement last Saturday that the Transit Authority will be eliminating an additional 215 daily train runs in the subway system as of Aug. 30, making a total of 855 runs dropped since early 1975. Cutting trains is certainly one way of cutting costs. It's also a way to drive people back into cars and taxis and kill mass transit.

Chairman Yunich has boasted that New Yorkers have absorbed service cuts to date "without a whimper." It is time long-suffering transit patrons were beard, loud and clear-not only on behalf of more and better service but for the broad-based regional tax that is needed to make such service possible.

Colombo Rhetoric

It would be easy to be cynical about the fifth summit meeting of so-called nonaligned nations in Colombo this week. As usual, the "nonaligned" will include Fidel Castro's Cuba and Kim Il Sung's North Korea, among other dubious claimants. The rhetoric and resolutions are likely to be excessive, one-sided, all too familiar. The demands on the richer nations will be the same as those made at every meeting of the poorer countries, whether they convene as the nonaligned, the Group of 77 (now 112) or the third world, Critics will say that the bost, Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon), could have put to better use the $50 million spent just to prepare for the assembly of 4,000 delegates from 85 member and 25 observer nations, it might have used a $280,000 Parliamentary appropriation to provide care and housing for Colombo's army of cripples and beggars, rather than to move them temporarily out of sight into "rehabilitation" camps outside the capital.

And yet, much of the discussion at Colombo will undoubtedly transcend the hypocrisies and focus on real problems that, in an increasingly interdependent world, Inevitably affect the prosperity and well-being of the richer as well as the poorer countries: control and pricing of raw materials; conditions of trade; the necessity for rescheduling debt service for developing countries whose balance-of-payments deficits reached $40 billion last year; the crisis confronting the World Bank's International Development Association, mostly because the United States, by far its biggest contributor, is now seriously in default on its pledges.

It is clearly impossible to meet all of the demands of the developing countries. But neither can the ricber countries, in light of their own long-run interests and their stake in international peace and stability, ignore those demands. The rbetoric of Colombo will be beard again at the United Nations General Assembly next month. The task for the United States and other industrialized nations is to help sort out what is reasonable and give it more serious attention than in the past.

Foreign Banks in the U.S.

In attempting to equalize competition between American and foreign banks operating in the United States. a bill recently passed by the House of Representatives. could provoke reprisals on United States banks operating overseas. The issue for the Senate to consider is whether a seemingly tidy administrative reform might stir up more problems than it solves.

Foreign bank operations in this country have grown at a spectacular rate over the past decade; 74 foreign banks operate 181 United States offices. Their net assets total $41 billion, compared with less than $7 billion ten years

These banks enjoy very real regulatory advantages, including the right to provide full banking services in more than one state and investment facilities denied to American banks. The International Banking Act of 1976 would enforce Federal supervision-as opposed to the present state regulation—over foreign banks, restrict their interstate branching and securities business and require maintenance of reserves, against their deposits, with the Federal Reserve System.

The other side of the picture, bowever, is the far greater growth of United States banking activity abroad. Some 125 American banks operate 750 foreign offices, with total assets of about $160 billion. These banks are allowed a wider degree of latitude in their financial operations than under domestic regulation, consistent with the more relaxed banking practices in other countries. The fear of these banks, which include the largest financing institutions for multinational trade, is that any move to restrict the foreign banks here would invite retaliation from foreign governments—the West German Banking Federation has already uttered guarded threats toward that end. Trade investment and capital flows could suffer in the process, without significant compensating benefit. It is the smaller American banks which favor the equalizing legislation—yet as a practical matter, few of the foreign banks engage in the type of retail business which is the smaller banks' mainstay.

Many of the issues raised in this bill relate more broadly to controversies about the domestic banking system-Federal versus state regulation, interstate operations and broader investment activities. A complete overhaul of the crazy-quilt regulatory system over this country's banking structure bas been under study for more than a year, led by the House banking committee. A careful weighing of the priorities in this complex effort has yet to demonstrate that a partial-and potentially provocative—reform of foreign banking regulation is necessarily the best place to start.

Paying for Government We Need

To the Editor: D. H. Lawrence is quoted as having once observed, "Let there be a parliament of men and women for the careful and gradual unmaking of laws."

The present New York State Legislature just enacted a law leveling at least an extra $1 million in local taxes on taxpayers in our smaller: and generally poorer towns, by mandating town justices off the town board in towns of the second class (809 in the state relative to population). This was done against the recommendation of this association (which represents 97 percent of the 930 towns of the state), and against the advice of State Comptroller Arthur Levitt and of Secretary of State Mario Cuomo's Division of Community Affairs.

Then, this same Legislature just passed a law to mandate that the taxpayers of the state pay all court expenses of all the courts of the state except those in towns and villages. So, the 8 million people of the state who live in our growing towns are mandated not only to pay the rising costs of their own courts (plus, in towns of the second class, the extra $I million mentioned above), but also the entire costs not only of New York City's court costs but also all court.

costs of all the 61 other cities of the state, plus all of the court costs of the lavish county and state court systems, as well Unbelievable! The above speaks so clearly for itself that it seems hardly necessary to note additionally that by the latest official report, our town and village courts are doing some $19 million worth of business, yearly, the preponderance of which reverts to the

Then this same Legislature overnight voted Constitutional "court reform" measures bastily patched together after disgruntled political compromise. This will cost our innocent, already overtaxed state taxpayers unspecified additional hard sums of tax dollars.

Let's unmake some laws. Let's pay only for the government we need and want. Above all, don't be fooled by the familiar technique of labeling a pro-posal "reform." Just because some bill drafter touts a measure "reform" does not mean it is wise, economical, efficient or in your best interests. Too often bave we voters been fooled by this cunning device.

For an Arms Authority

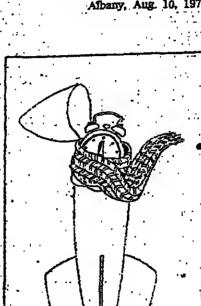

The answer to C. L. Sulzberger's ouestion-"Are we—or is our strategy— MAD?" in your Aug. 4 edition, is the latter. Not only is our strategy mad, but Mr. Sulzberger's own article testifies poignantly to the buman and moral bankruptcy of our whole approach to the mad arms race.

Unlimited competition in nuclear bombs, planes, ships and missiles will get us nowhere. It will only bankrupt, in every sense, both the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. The only road to national security is marked "World Security System," as President John F. Kennedy told us back in 1963.

Down this road only will we find the resources to begin realistically to solve our interdependent problems of food. population, environment, development, and buman rights. Wise Russians should be just as eager as wise Americans, and wise Chinese, to find this

Is our country so lacking in leaders and citizens of vision and realism that we must remain locked in a futile battle for "Mutual Assured Destruction" rather than - committing ourselves seriously and persistently to negotiating a treaty establishing an International Arms Control and Security Anthority? Only such an agency could provide a rational system of worldwide security under law and assure genuine national security for each nation and its citizens.

A New Danger for Hard-Pressed Cities

To the Editor:

Legislation is now being considered io Congress which, if enacted, might considerably increase the financial burdens of New York City and generate new pressure to invest more of the municipal pension funds in city bonds, a most unwise method of meeting the city's finaocial crises. The bill in question is H.R. 10210, as passed by the House of Representatives last month. It would require the city and other municipalities throughout the country to join their state unemployment insurance (U.I.) systems as taxpayers or benefit-cost reimbursers.

As the recession developed after 1973 and municipalities increasingly encountered budget problems, a great many public employees were laid off without any U.I. coverage. Congress, however, aided them through Supplementary . Unemployment Assistance (S.U.A.) payments-in effect a Federal unemployment relief system without a means test. But H.R. 10210 would allow S.U.A. to expire and substitute the mandatory coverage under U.I.

Such an extension of U.L. coverage would subject New York City end other municipalities to unemployment benefit costs which under S.U.A. are costing the country $1.5 million in a two-year period. With an already greatly unbalanced budget, where would the city find the millions of dollars needed for the U.L payments? The obvious and unfortunate answer is the pension funds. Great pressure would arise to raid them still more,

Consequently, we strongly oppose the passage of H.R. 10210 insofar as it deals with U.L coverage for municipal employees during the present crisis. With urban communities in financial straits, the proper solution—as posed in a number of pending congressional bills-is the continuation of Federal financing through the supplementary unemployment assistance system. It is decidedly premature to shift these burdens to local governments in the proximate future.

A Word About Corn

To the Editor:

Just two brief comments relating to your Aug. 8 editorial on corn. First, Mangelsdorf established as long age as 1958 that teosinte could not be the ancestor of corn. It is almost certainly the offspring, resulting from a hybridization of already domesticated corn with a wild variety called tripsacum (see Mangelsdorf, "Ancestor of Science, ccxxiii, Washington, 1958). Second, you declined to speculate as to corn's earliest appearance. which I think leaves your readers with unduly foggy notions as to where and when, especially since there are two relatively clear dates: (1) a core taken from the Valley of Mexico contains pollen grains clearly indicating the existence of wild maize at a depth of 200 feet in deposits that are at least 80,000 years old; (2) in Bat Cave in New Mexico have been found charred cobs of a primitive variety of domesticated maize among remains from the pre-pottery Desert Culture dating to about 250 B.C. (see M. Coe, Mexico, p. 49).

Since Gerald Ford has never actively supported extensive social legislation, the conservative defiance of his claim to the nomination as the incumbent reveals how deeply split the party really is. If liberal Republicans like Senators Charles Percy and Charles Mathias had sought the nomination instead of withdrawing in the interest of a unified moderate-liberal effort, the party battle would bave beeo even more ideologically divisive than it is today.

Unlike the Democratic Party, ideological divisions within the G.O.P. are accentuated by regional coalitions which reinforce them. Io 1948 and 1952 the more conservative candidate, Senator Robert Taft, drew his strongest delegate support from the South and the Midwest. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the moderate-liberal candidates, were backed by a coalition of Eastern and Western Republicans.

This pattern of the liberal East and West allied against the conservative. South and Midwest first weakened in 1964. The nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater heralded the rise of a new "Súnbelt" alliance between Southern and Western Republicans. With no outstanding moderate candidate, the Midwestern wing of the party remained largely uncommitted or pledged to favorite sons while the East, rallied around Henry Cabot Lodge, William Scranton, and Nelson Rockefeller. This year's delegate count shows Gerald Ford benefiting from a moderate alliance of the East and Midwest, and Ronald Reagan supported by the same Sunbelt partnership of the South and West which backed Barry Goldwater.

Thus over the last 25 years, the East and South have remained notably constant in their liberal-conservative attachmeots while the West and Midwest have switched ideological sides, the former veering sharply to the right and the latter emerging as a more moderate force within the party. This pattern is not confined to convention delegates. According to the results of . a New York Times/CBS national poll in June, on some 20 political issues, ranging from détente to welfare to busing, Eastern Republicans held moreliberal views than Southern Republicans, but Westerners were consistently the most conservative and Midwesterners the most liberal.

It is the ideological division which is paramount, though, and not the regional appeal of favorite son candidates. This spring Ford suffered defeats in several of the more conservative Midwestern states, and prominent Republican Senetors from the West failed to win election as Ford delegates from their home states. Furthermore, the 1976 split was closely foreshadowed at the 1972 Republican convention by the roll-call vote on whether to reform the delegate apportionment formula for 1976; East and Midwest Republicate gave the strongest support to the reform while the South and West solidly vetoed it. Many large and small states cast votes which were contrary to their self-interests in terms of delegate seats, choosing to vote instead

according to their ideological loyalties. Political parties have relied on two principal means for controlling fractious competition in nomination contests: olten they turn to candidates who are such likely winners that rival forces are persuaded to unite behind the prospect of victory, or they turn to candidates who can bridge the gap between contending factions.

For the Democratic Party, Jimmy Carter had the extraordinary virtue of being at once a winner and a bridge huilder. He acquired an image of electability which disarmed ideological enemies, and he demonstrated in the primaries and the convention a rare ability to appeal to diverse constituencies. This belped to unify, at least party still divided between its left, right and center wings.

In the postwar Republican Party, wheo one thinks of a candidate who can unify competing factions through his image of electability, the name of Dwight Elsenhower comes to mind: However, there are no Eisenhowers available in 1976 to soothe battle wounds in the G.O.P.

As for moderating factional squabbles by spanning the range of ideology. few politicians were more masterful than Richard Nixon. His success in winning nomination at five of the last six Republican conventions, in a party with such persistent ideological splits, attests to his ability to paint himself as a "Man for All Factions." When first nominaled as Vice President in 1952, Nixon had established a record as both an anti-Communist crusader and a moderate to liberal on other domestic and foreign-policy issues. In 1968, he wooed Eastern liberals by negotiating a moderate platform with Rockefeller and attracted the Southern ed at least one-third of the dele-

convention. This week marks the first time in a quarter century that Richard Nixon will not be shaping events in person at e Republican National Convention. But his presence will still be felt. In, no small way, the motivating force behind the conservatives challenge in 1976 is their sense of being betrayed by the liberal policies and unprincipled deceit: of a President they ardently supported. Too many of their gains from 1964 have been lost. The conservatives are determined not to be tripped again.

In a year when the Republican chances in November look very slim, the real issue at stake in Kansas City is not so much the nomination prize itself as what will be the future direction of the Republican Party and who will control it.

Gary Orren teaches political science at : Harvard University and is writing a

It's oot clear how many Republicans actually want to see a big-time usws man up close, but those who do will not have to go as far as the Muchle bach lobby. Throw a well-gnawed barbectued rib bone up in the air in Kansas City and it will hit a newsman, big-time or otherwise, on the way down. (It is true that he or she wili almost certainly be comparing notes, usually with another journalist.)

All hotel lobbies are festioned with television cables, and the uniquitous cameras, like giant three-legged warrior ants, stare with red insistent eyes from every corner and corridor. Authorities say there's a reporter here for every delegate, and that doesn't count editors, publishers, columnists and other supertargues. Space for press, radio and television takes up most of Municipal Auditorism and all of the Governors Exhibition Hall while the convention itself is confined to Kemper Arena, a glorified basketbell court. There are enough tape recorders on hand to sustain the Japanese economy, and—eat your heart out. Ben Hecht—not a few reporters here are filing their stories by punching a computer.

Save the computers, none of this is much different from any convention since Huntley and Brinkley rode out of the West in 1956, gavel-to-gavel and sweeping all before them. National political conventions are as much rituals of the press and television as they are of the two parties; so it's no wooder that here, as in Madison Square Garden last mooth, a corps of academics is on hand solely to "study" the media" and their part in "the communications process."

arrival at his hotel here, an event of profound insignificance, was treated ... as not much less than a moon landing. And it's hard not to suspect that some-times one network's lavish expenditures and installations are mostly to match another networks and thet perhaps essential coverage of the convention doesn't demand anything like such displays.

As for the writing press, here as in any unfolding situation an enternous amount of thrashing about is devoted to efforts to learn today what every-one will know anyway on Wednesday and Thursday. News conferences all too often seem like shouting matches at which reporters compete to ask the same questions, and the amount of copy being filed here is to hard news as the Missouri River is to the flow of soft drinks in the Muchlebach bar.

Nevertheless, the press and televiand ganglia of this convention, as of any other John Sears' war of nerves and maneuver on the Ford and uncom-mitted delegates is being waged essentally in the media, which create the atmosphere of events as well as color ... their perception. Credible but not necessarily accurate reports showing, say, Ronald Reagan winning over Pennsylvania, or Gerald Ford gaining among the uncommitteds, might well generate decisive reaction on the floor. In the larger "communications process" of carrying the news to the country, television will coovey what happens as soon as it happens of course, and the writing reporters will do their best to explain it. But the real importance of press and television here may be more in what happens, and in bow they influenced its happening

Sunday Traffic Found Lightening

ا ١٥٠٥من الرجل

By RALPH BLUMENTHAL

PRINCETON, N.J., Aug. 15-"There's some good 'six' traffic," said Tom Kochele, maneuvering the little red end white Cessna Skyhawk a thousand feet over a thickening stream of traffic on the Garden State "That's e 'five-level,' Tom, that's not solid enough for 'six,'" said his companion, Thomas Jordan, he-hind him in the four-seater, single-eogine plane, a map covered with inked-in figures spreed open on his lap. Almost every summer Sunday for the last four years, Mr. Jordan and aides have been flying over the metropolitan area's main highways, mapping and rating the traffic flow on e scale of one (minimal traffic) to six (stop and go).

The survey, a project of the Tri-State Regional Planning Commission, has produced a striking observation: homebound weekend traffic congestion has dropped sharply since 1973.

The data, compiled by the federally subsidized New York-New Jersey-Connecticut planning agency,

showed, among other things: 4Between 1973 and 1975, congestion on limited-access highways throughout the region oo Sunday af-ternoons and nights has decreased 61 percent, with congestion totals on roadways dropping from 640 to ¶Conversely, miles of moderate and light traffic increased—65 percent and 15 percent, respectively. CTne congestion that remains has been shifting to the later hours: in 1973 the peak occurred between 6:40 P.M. and 9:20; last summer, the biggest jams built up between 9:20 P.M. and midnight.

Despite the improvements, major trouble spots remain—the Tappan Zee Bridge on the Gov. Thomas E. Dewey Thruway, the Garden State Parkway oorth of the New Jersey Turnpike, the Long Island Expressway and other corridors to the heach resorts, and the George Washington Bridge and Cross Bronx Express-

Although the so-called "eyeballing" of this summer's traffic is atill in progress, Lyman Coddington, information manager of the Tri-Stale Regional Planning Commission, said there was no reason to believe the trend had reversed itself this year. However, he added that a "leveling-off" of gaios was expected. "I don't think we'll ever have zero congestion," he

The commission, which expanded its scope from a transportation agency to a planning body in 1971, attributes the declining congestion not to reduced traffic-vehicle travel miles have been increasing-but to other factors: new highway construction, other road improvements and shifting travel patterns.

Conditions Assessed

Mr. Coddington acknowledged that there could have been some "faulty eyeballing," but he called the basic methodology of the survey sound, saying: "We doo't count construction or accidents."

In what might have been a typical Sunday flyover today, Mr. Jordan, a 44-year-old transportation engineer, pilot and Air Force Reserve officer who founded bis own aerial research company, the Skycomp Data Corporation of Princeton, met with Mr. Koebele at the small general aviation Princeton Airport at S P.M. With Nr. Koedele, a 26-year-old commercial airline pilot, at the controls of a high-wing Cessna rented for about S25 an hour, they circled back and forth at up to 120 miles an hour 1,000 feet over the turnpike and parkways, assessing condition.

Another community of disappearing coastline is Eccinitas, a flower-growing center north of here. Scripps scientists say that the coast at En-cinitas receded ioland more than 830 feet in the last 93 years, yielding about 20 acres of prime oceanfront real estate to the Pacific.

A huge block of a bluff just north of the oceanogra-phy center's new biology building fell into the ocean last winter. Mr. Kuhn, in discussing the danger that exists along the coast where developments are rising on sheer bluffs, said that too little attention has been pald in the past to weather conditions in studying coastal erosioo.

"The wearing away and collapse of the coastal oluifs is greatly accelerated during extended wet periods, and when severe storms at sea produce high, forceful surf," he said.

The Major Events of the Day

Republican Convention President Ford got enough delegate commitments at the start yesterday of the 31st Republican National Convention in Kansas City, Mo., to assure him the majority of the votes he needs for the Presidential comina-tico. He has 1,130 votes, according to The New York Times tabulation, but his nomioation was threatened by the prospect of divisive floor maneuvers by Ronald Reagan forces. Senator Howard H, Baker Jr. of Tennessee delivered the convention's keynote speech with a rousing attack oo Jimmy Carter, in which he was joined hy Vice President Rockefeller, Senator Robert Dole of Kansas, who is the convection's temporary chairman, and Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona. [Page 1, Column 8.]

Setting up a probable floor fight et the convention tonight, campaign strategists for Ronald Reagan proposed to add a platform plank that would implicitly criticize the foreign policies of President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Another platform fight seemed assured when 29 delegates, led by women members of the Platform Committee, sought to remove the plank endorsing a constitutional amendment "to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children." [1:6-7.]

The Mississippi delegation to the convention, with its 30 delegates "uncommitted" under a unit rule, has a crucial position and is under 24-hour siege by the candidates, the press and the curious who are yearning to know how the delegation will vote. Other pivotal delegations, among them groups from West Virginia and Pennsylvania, are under the same pressure. [1:6-7.]

Senator James L. Buckley of New York withdrew from the Presidential race. He made the announcement at a news conference at the convention, where New York delegates were openly critical of his candidacy or gave him a cold shoulder. He acknowledged a general lack of support and said that "I will not be a candidate for anything but re-election to the Senate." [1:5.]

from the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation to arrange the purchase of Lockheed planes by All Nippon Airways. Three Japanese business executives were also iodicted on bribery charges with Mr. Tanaka, who remained in jail pending a bail application. [1:1.]

Earthquakes struck China and an area off the Philippioea last night and early today. according to seismological reports. The quakes were believed severe enough to cause extensive damage and casualties. The quake in China was centered in Szechwan Province, about 800 miles southwest of the area devastated by an earthquake, three weeks ago. The one off the Philippines was in the Gulf of Moro near Mindanao. [1:2-3.]

Reacting to a crime wave that has swept Detroit's East Side, the city's officials re-called 450 laid-off police officers and ordered a 10 P.M. curfew for all children 17 years old and under. The action followed the disruption of a rock concert in Cobo Hall, lo the downtown area, hy a crowd of youtha and adults, who robbed dozens of people in the audience. A woman was raped and another molested, the police said. [1:1-3.]

The Federal Court of Appeals removed a preliminary injunction issued last Friday by Federal District Court judge in Brooklyn that halted the start of a sale by the Government of leases on oil and natural gas deposits in the Atlantic Ocean, off Loog Island. New York State, several Long Island communities and an environmentalist group had sued to prevent the sale. A three-judge panel on the Appeals Court ruled unanimously that "no irreparable harm" would result from allowing the sale to be held pending a court hearing oo the environmental issues next month. [1:2-3,]

A long-term financial plan that would substantially increase the state's share of the City University's senior-college operating budgets by 1979-80 has been proposed by the New York State Board of Regents. The atate's share would rise to 80 percent, while the city's share would be reduced to 20 percent. The Regeots also reaffirmed their opposition to a merger of the State and City University systems. A 29-year-old Queens woman, the mother of four children who has worked as a clerk-typist and collected welfare since 1970, was arrested yesterday on e welfare-fraud charge similar to one to which she pleaded guilty two years ago.

The state's Welfare Iospector General, Richard V. Horan, and spokesman for Nicholas Ferraro, the Queens District Attor-ney, said that it was extremely rare for a welfare recipieot to be prosecuted twice for tha same kind of alleged fraud. The woman, Helen Ervin of 115-49 147th Street, Jamaica, was accused of concealing in-come and of fraudulently accepting $6.639 in assistance over an 18-month period. A State Supreme Court justice put the case off for a week to enable her to obtaio legal couo-

Property Policies Can Be Dropped More Quickly Under Change in Law

By JOSEPH P. FRIED

Under a little - publicized change in New York State law, insurance companies will be able to cancel many fire-insurance and other property-damage policies on apartment buildings with greater ease than they could before.

According to the State Insurance Department, the change in-law applies to policies held by landlords and cooperative corporations, effective on or after Aug. 1, 1976, in buildings in the state with more than four apartments. Insurance companies issuing such policies will be able to cancel them. for any reason whatever, with just 30 days' notice. Previously, insurance policies on apartment buildings, like those on small residential buildngs, could be freely canceled only within the first 60 days after the policies were issued. After 60 days, any cancella-

Becoming Aware

Real estate people, many of whom are only now becoming aware of the change, say it will make it even harder for many apartment owners and coopera tive corporations to retain sufficient fire, property-damage and hability insurance for their buildings.

served bere, but Republican women have been fighting in the open—among themselves. President Ford and Ronald Reagan-with which it keeps getting confused and entan-gled—the women's fight has been the best and most skillfully waged political contest on view here. In contention is the proposed equal rights amend-ment, which would bar discriminatinn on account of sex, and which nine consecutive Republican conventions, going back to 1940, bave endorsed. The E.R.A. has also been endorsed by President Ford and his wife, Betty, but it is opposed by Mr. Reagan and his wife, Nancy. That is one obvious reason that the amendment has been in contention here, but not the most important.

The basic reason is Phyllis Schlafly, who mildly intro-duces herself as a lawyer'a wife from Alton, Ill., and the mother of six, a correct but incomplete description. She is also a sharp and prolific polemicist for conservative causes and a skillful organizer—the author of a monthly newsletter called The Phyllis Schlafly Report, with a cir-culation, she says, of 14,000 the "Stop E.R.A." campaign that bas come close in the last two years to doing just arounsed Republican women Her picture adorns the masthead of the newsletter and it can best be described as glamorous. Mrs. Schlafly is 52 years old, but it is not false advertising. A blonde that can still be called wil-lowy and a winning smile, she does not bave to shout

The Republican Women's Task Force, which is affiliated with the National Women's Political Caucus, is also new on the scene. This year it had hoped to move on to new goals; to increase, for in-stance, the representation of women at the convention, Instead it has had to fight and lobby and organize merely to

Mrs. Schlafiv portrays R.A. 25 "an attack on the wife and homemaker." The feminists in the task force bridle at the suggestion that they are less representative of Republican women—wives and homemakers included— than their opponents. Surveys, they maintain, prove the opposite.

"I know perfectly well that Phyllis Schlaffy has domestic help to scrub her kitchen floors. I scrub my own kitch-en floors,' said Betsy Griffith, a national officer of the women's caucus who has been representing the task force be-fore the Republican rules committee here. "Some day we can compare dishpan

Privately, the Republican feminists acknowledge that they have found it advisable to dress up for the convention, wearing high neels and dresses, not pants. Miss Grif-fith, who is married to John Deardourff, a political consultant who specializes in moderate Republicans, made it a point to bring her wed-ding ring, which she doesnt usually wear.

Historian by Training But she has not had to reach for her needlepoint to demonstrate to her fellow Republicans that feminism is not at war with domesticity, for she is conspicuously pregnant. "Do you hate men?" a middle-aged Republican male asked after one of her appearances for the task force. "Can't you tell I'm preg-nant," she replied. "I bave a lovely husband who supports the equal rights ameodinent." Tall, blonde and-to repeat an adjective because once again it applies — glamorous, Miss Griffith was a Republican before sbe became a feminist, Now 29, she was president of the Young Republicans at Weliesley College in ber junior year ("something I only mention at Republican conventions.") A historian by training, she can make the case: that the Republican party has traditionally been more open to the cause of women than the Democrats. If it hadn't been for the Ford-Reagan contest, Miss Griffith says, the task force women would have challenged the cradentials of state delegations that have consolonously failed to live up to a party rule that they strive for equal representation of men and women at the convention.

> Never a Chance But, in fact, it was the Ford delegations that had the worst offenders; faced with the Reagan chal-lengers, the Ford strategists had weighted their delegate well-known politicians who there, not surprisingly, most-

The task force had not enforced any candidate. It claimed some Reagan women its supporters. But it was not about to blindly pursue a tactic that would abet the nomination of the candidate who opposed E.R.A.

Mrs. Schlafly was at no such disadvantage tactically, oeing a strong Reagan sup-porter who says she could not support Mr. Ford so long as he retains Secretary of State Henry (whom she has attacked in two book-length tracts, "Kis-singer on the Couch" and, hot off the presses, "Amoush at Vladivestok").

When she appeared before the platform committee last week, she was able to point to her constituency and the striking success "Stop E. R. A." has had in blocking the ratification of the amendment in state legislatures. The measure has stalled after having been passed in 34 of the 38 states needed for ratification.

By BERNADINE MORRIS The design of a winter coat was once strictly prescribed. The garment was cut straight in a boxy shape or it had a small indentation at the waistline and a bit of flare through the skirt. About the only acceptable alternative was the coat with a ripple at the back.

Collars were notched, shawl, or occasionally buttoned high at the neckline. Belt and buttons provided the décor.

The pattern bas of course exploded in recent years, when the outer urban garment in the dead of winter might be a quilted nylon parka, suitable for the Arctic, a heavy knitted sweater borrowed from the upper reaches of the Andes or a cloak, voluminous and mysterious, appropriate for a rendezvous in a 19th-century chalet

The romance continues this fall.

In the vast assortment of styles geared to keep the frost from the body, two types stand out. One is the coat as wide as a cape, with some of its flourish. Its advantage over the cape is that it does stay anchored on the body, leaving the arms free for fumbling with keys and bus tokens and for carryinghome groceries. It can be a float of mohair, a rain-proof plastic or a tailored affair as meticulously constructed as the coat of yore.

The other ubiquitous style is a blanket. Right, a blanket. It can be striped like a blanket, fringed like a blanket. It can be knitted, or lined wih poplin, or made of a sturdy, conventional woolen fabric. When it's not covering the shoulders, it can be used as a lap robe. Or folded up and sat upon in a football stadium.

What the two styles have in common is plenty of width, so it doesn't matter bow many sweaters or jackets are worn underneath. What they also have is plenty of flourish. It takes a bit of skill to handle a blanket, but once acquired it's a useful technique. It can give grandeur to a rectangle of fabric.

Bracelets, for a Dainty Ankle or Weighty Boot

By RUTH ROBINSON Just the other day it seems multiple pierced earrings and nose studs were the latest thing in personal adornment. Now it's the anklet's turn to make the fashion scene.

"It was the logical place to go," said Lee Caldwell, who with Phyllis Kaplan has put together a collection of the ornaments. They're a natural for resort wear, but the partners see them in town too, right now with paracoute pants in the fall over boots.

Women will no doubt be lavishing as much care on selecting the right anklet for each outfit as they did on those ethnic bead necklaces Born Yesterday, as the women have named their enoffers variety enough-from 1950's indentification anklets to unisex sterling chains, from silk

Five and a half years ago. Chester Ozerowski, who was 14 years old, struck a 19-year-old Jordanian immigrant over the head with a baseball bat at a Yonkers restaurant, fracturing the busboy's skull and leaving him partially paralyzed. The as-sailant served five months in a juvenile reformatory and was released.

Yesterday, five young men in their early 20's, none of whom had struck a blow in the 1971 incident, began serving jail sentences of up to four years for conspiracy and assault, followiog the denial of their final motion in a state court for a stay of sentence.

Martin Miller, 22, Tomm Ozerowski, 23, Tommy O'Neill 23, Roger Santavicca, 22, and Russell DePasquale, 21, were admitted to the Westchester County Jail in Valhalla, N.Y., to await a ruling from the court on the prison where they will serve a minimum of one year.

After years of litigation and what lawyers for the five men have called highly sensational coverage in the Yonkers press, only one final Federal appeal

Salim Rabadi was not informed of yesterday's eveots.

Stockton Wins P.G.A. Title Jy Stroke

Special to The New York Times .

BETHESDA, Md., Aug. 16-Although the weather cleared today for the final round of the 58th Professional Golfers' Association championship, the tournament picture remained cloudy until Dave Stockton dropped a 12-foot putt on the 18th green to win by a stroke. Stockton knew the ball was goiog into the cup the moment he stroked it, and the 34-year-old Californian began waving his arms before the ball plunked into the cup at the 7.054-yard Congressional Country Club course. Stock-ton also won the 1970 P.G.A.

Yanks' 13-Hit Feast Beats Rangers, 5-1

Many of the 21,621 fans at Mickey will whiz round the Yankee Stadium last night were upset because a wildcat strike shut down all the concession stands. About 200 employees of Canteen Corporation walked out just before the game.

The fans, however, were not deprived altogether. The Yankees filled the void with their play on the field as they whipped the staggering Texas Rangers, 5-1.

Instead of sipping Cokes, the fans drank up Catfish Hunter's nifty pitching. Instead of munching hot dogs, then at a m Mickey Rivers's they ate up Mickey Rivers's inside-the-park bome run. Instead of guzzling beer, they got drunk on Fred Stanley's first major league homer since 1973—a barely out-ofthe-park home run.

And as icing on the cake, the fans licked their lips over the three hits that Thurman Munson, Chris Cham-bliss and Graig Nettles each amassed among the Yankees' 13 bits off Gaylord Perry.

The Designated Gimmick

Now why would a strait-laced guy like Bowie Kuhn suddenly decide that they should play the World Series with 10 men on a side this year and nine on a side next

He did it to break a tle: For the last four summers, the American League has let "the 10th man" bat for the pitcher but the National League has refused. The issue wasn't tradition; it was money. Eight of the I2 teams in the American League lost money in 1972 and only three drew more than a million customers. So they installed the "designated hitter" as an experiment to energize both the game and the gate, and started plugging to make it universal. But the National League, with newer stadiums and bigger crowds; wouldn't hite. "It will give jobs to a lot of men that are elderly and slow," old Casey Stengel reflected at the time. "They don't bit .400 today, and the pitchers even expectorate on the ball."

Depending on how you translate Stengel, he meant that people were always tinkering with the balance between offense and defense. Foul balls were ruled strikes in 1903. the spitball was banned in 1920, the "lively" ball was introduced in 1930, the strike zone was widened in 1962, the strike zone was narrowed in 1969 and the pitcher's mound was lowered the same year. Then tame the American League's "10th man," and now the commissioner has voted to play the "dh" in the World Series in alternate yearsthe way baseball will switch television networks in alternate years.

Only Computers Need Apply

Things are getting so complicated that they may need John Kenneth Galbreath as a consultant before long. We already have "5-and-10" players who can veto trades after five years with one club and 10 years in the big leagues. We're about to get "six-year players" who can become free agents, but only 12 teams can bid for tham. We have arbitration after two years and "repeater rights" for five years. And the commissioner, breaking another tie between the leagues, has just voted to permit "performance contracts" based on 12 categorles of statistics like victories pitched. earned-run average, games saved, runs batted in, home runs, slugging percentage, total bases, stolen bases and even bases on balls.

Neither Professor Galbreath nor Professor Steagel nor the Cincinnati Reds were around when Alexander Joy Cartwright wrote down the rules of the game 150 years ago: bases 90 feet apart, three outs to a side each inning. nine innings to a game, nine men to a team. They are things that Bowie Kuhn often extols as the "wonderful geometry" of baseball. But within the ancient rules, the Cincinnati Reds play better baseball than anybody else these daysand draw more customers than almost anybody else.

They didn't use or need "the 10th man" last summer but, in one blistering 50-game stretch, they won 41 times, Pete Rose got 70 hits, Joe Morgan reached base 97 times, Johnny Bench hit 12 home runs and knocked in 47 runs, their three best pitcher went 17 and 0, and the defense played 152 innings without making an error. At the end of the season, they counted 2,315,603 paid admissions and everybody collected World Series checks.

"From our point of view, it doesn't matter too much," conceded Sparky Anderson, the manager of the marvels. "We'll be there if they use 9 men or 10 or 12 on a side. But from the fans' point of view, I can see only two places where the designated hitter might create interest-in spring training, where they might see the odd player go to bat more often, and in the All-Star Game, where extra hitters always go to bat for the pitcher anyway. Otherwise, they're taking away the fans' chance to drink beer and second-guess the manager."

Man Wants No Respect

They're still second-guessing the manager in Boston, where Anderson's Reds played the World Series to rave notices last October—without the "dh." After 64 innings of rousing baseball spread over 10 days, they were still deadlocked with two outs in the eighth inning of the seventh game. Then Darrell Johnson of the Red Sox took a classic gamble under the "old" rules: He alected to pinch hit for his best relief pitcher, Jim Willoughby. The pinch-hitter grounded out, Willoughby left the game and a rookie pitcher named Jim Burton surrendered the run that decided the series in the final inning of the final game.

"I would've got that hit in the ninth no matter who was pitching," said Joe Morgan, whose single to center field finally beat the Red Sox. "What they're trying to do," suggested Mike Lum, "is to get the designated hitter into the National League-by degrees. It's like Pete Rozelle trying to settle the O.J. Simpson dispute for the good of football." "It all matters who you are," Morgan said, "Do you think Rozelle would get involved if it wasn't O.J.?" "It matters who you are," Tony Perez agreed. "I saw the man walk you the other night to pitch to George Foster with the bases loaded. That's respect."

"I don't want respect," Little Joe replied, getting baseball back to basics. "I want r.b.i.'s."

The main question that hung over the New York Giants' camp last night as they reported in following their two exhilarating victo-ries in four days was: Will Larry Csonka's neck injury prevent him from playing against the Steelers on Friday night in Pittshurgh?

The answer depends on who's talking. Csonka is willing and thinks he'll be ready to play. The X-rays of his neck, hurt in a face-mask incident in Oilers' game, were negative and his only complaint is that he has a sore

However, the official Giants' word is that Csonka is "very douhtful." Apparent-Coach Bill Arnsparger doesn't want to risk his star against the two-time Super Bowl champion Steelers. The major injury in the Houston game belonged to Charke Ford, a reserve cornerback who sustained torn

He was operated on by Dr. John Marshall, the Giants new orthopedic surgeon, in the Hospital for Special Surgery in Manhattan yesterday. While the Giants were husy playing two games in four days, a new team of physicians took over. Besides Dr. Marshall, the Giants named Dr. Allan Levy, who has been the doctor for the New York Nets for the last nine years and will also remaio in that post, as the new team doctor. Dr. Marshall, head of the Sports Clinic at the Hospital for Special Surgery, works closely with Dr. Levy and has operated, for instance, on the knees of Julius Erviog, the Nets' star forward. They replaced Dr. Rudy Bono, the Giant team physician for the last eight years, and Dr. Ray Cuneff, an orthopedic sur-geon who joined the club trip[2½ hours each way] he had to make every day was just too much for him," said Andy Rohustelli, the Giants' director of operations. Braves 4, Reds 3 AT CINCINNATI — Fred Norman struck out 10 batters, the best effort by a Cincin-nati pitcher this season, But it was not good eoough. The OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 16 -Carrying a nine-game winning streak, high spirits and a conviction that they can Reds' southpaw also gave up a leadoff homer in the overtake Kansas City for a sixth straight Western Diviseventh to Vic Correll and that proved to be the differ sion title, the Oakland A's ence. Norman lost his third headed East today for a trip game against 11 victories. through Milwaukee, Boston The winner was Carl Morton and Baltimore in the best frame of mind they've had saved the game for Atlanta. Devine relieved Morton with this year. They are seven two runs in, a runner on third and two out in the eighth. He retired Tony Perez, shutting off Cincingames behind with 45 to play.

"We think we're going to catch them," said Manager Chuck Tanner, staying on a theme he has been repeating since. May. "We play them six times in the last 12 days, six times in the last 12 days, and we think we can be close enough before that to do the job. Then, if they do beat us, we'll just tip our hats to them and go home."

Most of the A's players, from Sal Bando, the captain, on down, have been talking the last week about how the pressure will start to tell on pressure will start to tell on the Royals. After losing five straight in Minnesota, the A's came home and sliced five games off the Kansas City margin in one week.

"It's got to bother them, to see us coming on like this," said Bando. "We've been there before, and they haven't. We look at the scoreboard to see how they do, but we know they look to see how we do."

A Big Victory

Yesterday's 8-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox, achieved with two ninth-inning ruos after two were out, and after Boston led following the first three innings, 6-0, was the sort of game Bando had in mind. A Kansas City victory had already been posted on the scoreboard. "It's worth much more than just one victory in the standings," he said, "and when they read about how we won it, they'll know what it means."

And Charles O. Finley, the owner, in one of his rare onthe-scene appearances, expressed the same idea. "This is our biggest win of the year." sald Finley, who usually takes the games by telephone in Chicago, but who turned up yesterday and startled Frank Cienszyk, the loyal equipment manager who had never before seen Finley wearing his new hair-piece and almost didn't recognize hlm.

"Kansas City's looking over their shoulder now," he went on "They will choke because they haven't been there before. They can put that state-ment right on their clubbouse wall. They'll read it so much they'll believe it.

Another sign that the A's may be on their traditional champlonship course is the renewed flow of uninhibited comment from their clubhouse. The other day, Gene Tenace declared be would be gone next year after playing out bis option, and that he was shamefully underpaid.

Running Is Key

The fact is, the A's have a way of separating on-field concentration from off-field to a remarkable degree. And in baseball terms, over the last few weeks, their pitching has sharpened up, their defense has tightened and the hitters have been improving toward their normal levels. And the relief pitching has been spectacular.

But the main thing is their running game, and it was the key to the victory that provided such an emotional lift yesterday. They came to bat in the eighth trailing, 7-4, and the way they scored the two runs that made the ninth inning possible was a textexample of how they play.

Bert Campaneris walked. As he broke for second, Doo Baylor hit a routine grounder through the vacated right side for a single instead of an out or even a double play. That put Campaneris on third. Then Taylor took off for second as Joe Rudi grounded to short. It was a per-fect double-play grounder, except that Baylor was already oo second, so Rick Burleson had to throw to first for one out while Campaneris scored. Bando bounced an infield hit off the third baseman's glove, but Baylor, instead of staying at second, came on to third. Bando then stole second, eliminating another double-play possibility, and that paid off because Tenace's grounder to short beonly the second out while Baylor scored from

The ninth was instructive, too. Cesar Tovar got himself hit by a pitch, and after Phil Garner fouled off two bunts before flying out, Tovar tried to steal and was thrown out. But Billy North doubled to left, Campy poked a single through the right side tying the score, and he continued to second on the unsuccessful throw home. Thereupon Baylor's looper to center fell among four converging Bos-ton players and Campaneris scored the winning run.

"I hit it good," the 29-year-old shortstop said, "but after I took two or three steps, I saw it starting to hook and I said, 'Oh Heck.' It was a shock that the ball went out of there in the first place. I haven't hit the ball that hard in a long time." But with the count at 3-2, Stanley hit Perry's fastball even harder.

"When I hit it, I knew it was going out." Stanley said.
"I hit it hard enough so it couldn't hook as much as the first one."

The homer was the fourth of his major league careerin 762 times at bot—and his first one since Sept. 1, 1973. when he hit the last grandslam homer in the old Yan-kee Stadium. That one, off Kevin Kobel of Milwaukee. hit the foul pole. "I can afford to be more aggressive knowing I'm going to be playing every day." explained.

Hunter Hits Spots Hunter has been pinching every fourth day recently instead of every fifth, as he had for most of the season, and that could be the difference in his pitching.

"I don't feel as strong." he said, "so I have to go out and throw to spots instead of trying to throw the ball past everybody. Pitching a game like this makes me feel I know how to pitch instead of going out and pitching two or three good innings and ten a bad inning. It makes you feel like you know how to pitch again."

Hunter had the Rangers shut out to five hits until the

Con Ed Ranking as Investment Rising

By TERRY ROBARDS -

Most of the customers of the Consolidated Edison Company are in New York City, a metropolis whose financial problems are problems known the world over, and to some extent Con Ed's troubles mirror those of the

"Con Ed is virtually a zero growth situation," says a Wall Street analyst. "They're stuck with the territory they have, and we all know what that means-business and industry moving out, people moving out, lots of prob-

Nobody is ranking the company as a blue chip among utility investments; yet a consensus seems to be emerging that the quality of Con Ed's earnings is moving up and that the outlook is better than it has been for several years.
In its annual midyear ap-

In its own analysis of elec-tric utility boods, Baobe Halsey Stuart, another hig investment house, says Con Ed "continues to improve its position." Bache notes that the two leading bond rating services, Moody's and Standard & Poor's, are rating Coo Ed boods currently at Baz and BBB, respectively.

"In our view," says Bache, "the quality of this company's earnings deserves an A rating, and despite the poor image of a major portion of the franchise area, an up-ward adjustment is de-served."

Gerald D. Morgan of Bache cited two factors in the Con Ed outlook that most other snalysts seem to agree are crucial; the recent sale of two electricity geograting plants to the New York State Power Authority and recent increases granted in rates for electricity and gas. Four months ago Richard R.

Olivere Jr. of Jessup & Lamont concluded in a five-page study of Con Ed: "A realistic regula-tory Bttitude, a leveling of fuel costs, successes of management in dealing with serious obstacles and an improvement of financial and capital ratios lead us to be-lieve that Con Edison stock, at a price of about 17, is presently undervalued."

Coo Ed's standing in Wall Street touched bottom in the second quarter of 1974, when the dividend was omitted. Utility stocks have always been regarded by investors as income issues that make quarterly payments to share-holders with unflagging regu-for nine years.

Crucial to any further dividend raises will be higher earnings. In this year's first half, Con Ed reported earnings of $1.87 a share, up from $1.73 in last year's first helf. Net income in the second quarter amounted to 71 cents a share, up narrowly cents a share, up narrowly from 69 cents.

Canadian Arctic In New Gas Estimate

Canadian Arctic Gas Pipcline Ltd. yesterday raised the cost estimate on its proposed Mackenzie Delta pipe-line to $7.4 billion from $8.6

Average Home Prices Up $2,000

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (UPI) — The rate of inflation contioued to expand moderately oc the home-buying front in the second quarter with the average price of a new house rising $2,000, the Government said today.

The average, new single-family home sold for $48,000 in the spring quarter, up 4.3 percent from the first quarter's $46,000 purchasing price, the Commerce Department said. In the first quarter, the cost of buying a new home rose $1,600 or 3.6 percent from the preceding quarter, the department said.

The department said its price index of new one-family houses rose to 189.9 of the 1967 base of 100 in the second quarter. This means that a homebuyer who paid $24,600 for a house in 1967, must oow pay $46,700 for a comparable dwelling.

Construction Pace Expected to Grow

The pace of new construction will continue to grow over the next two years and then slow until 1981, putting construction activity little ahead of where it was in 1973, according to a five-year industry forecast. F.W. Dodge Division of the McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company said construction contracts should reach $150 billion in 1981, assuming an average 5 percent increase a year in construction costs. The 1981 contract value would be 50 percent above 1973, but the volume of construction about

"Most of what will be called expansion during the next five years will be recovery from the severe recession of 1974-75," according to the Dodge forecast. Construction of new commercial and industrial buildings will holster the industry into 1978, but the pace then should slow as residential construction begins to drag. Despite the overall slowdown, construction of public works and utility projects will remain high through 1931 when it is expected to account for 30 percent of all building activity, Dodge said.

Bernbach Steps Aside at D.D.B.

William Bernbach, an advertising man who needs no introductioo, stepped aside yesterday as chief executive officer of Doyle Dane Bern-bach Inc. He was succeeded in the top post of the na-uen's 11th largest agency by Joseph R. Daly, 58, who will continue as chairman.

Mr. Bernbach, who hecame 65 last Fridty, was asked by the board of the publicly owned company to stay on beyond the normal mandatory retirement age and he agreed in cootinue as chairman of the executive committee. Last October, he signed a 10-year contract with the agency he co-founded ond yesterday he said, "I'll still be doing what I have always done."

What Mr. Berniach has done for more than two decades is serve as the creative sparkplug and cooscience of the agency. In the early years of D.D.B., he wrote man, ads himself; as the agency grew, he edited the work of others and taught scores of young and not-so-young men and women a great deal about advertising creativity.

Many of these Bernhach-trained creative people, in-cluding some of the alumni who left to establish their owo shops, attended a birthowo shops, attended a birth-day party that the agency gave for him last night at its new headquarters. Among those invited were George Lois of Lois Holland Call-away, Julian Koenig of Julian Koenig Inc. and Ronald Rosenfeld and Leonard Siro-witz of Resenfeld, Sirowitz & Lawson.

Legend has it that when Mr. Bernbach, Ned Doyle and Maxwell Dane founded the agency in 1949, they flipped a coin to decide the order of their names in the title. Mr. Bernbach—who has often re-ferred to himself as "Bernbach of Doyle Dane"—was named president to compen-sate for his third position on the letterhead and he has heen No. 1 at the agency ever since. Under his leadership, D.D.B. has been frequently credited with spearheading the creative revolution of the last 25 years that changed the face of much of American advertising from repetitions of product advantages to inter-esting print and broadcast ads that attracted the attention and sales dollars of reud-ers, listeners and viewers. The general public, as well as the advertising community, became aware over the years of Mr. Bernbach's—and the ageocy's work — for such clients as Ohrhach's, Voikswagen, Levy's bread, Avis and Polaroid.

Five years after the founding of D.D.B., Mr. Daly was hired as its first account man. The former Navy fighter pilot, who won the Navy Cross during World War II. moved upward through the agency's ranks to become president in 1968, when Mr. Bernbach became chairman, and chairman in 1974, when Mr. Bernbach became chairman of the executive com-

Confidence in Foods

The General Foods Corporation is planning to break next month a million-dollarolus national magazine campaign to help offset what it describes as "eroding consumer confidence in the food industry."

In its editorial-format campaign, General Foods hopes to clear up confusion and concern about food additives. After all, the company has a huge stake in the food busi-ness with its 400 brands. The ads created by Young & Rubleam will touch on a number of sensitive topics, such as nutritional labeling, identification of some common additives and government safety regulations. At first glance, the ads look like letters with such headlines as "Dear General

Foods, People are what they cat. So why should I eat propylene glycol monostearate?" Answers follow.

Shamrock Oil Campaigo

Without benefit of a logo or formal corporate identi-fication, the Diamond Shamrock Corporation, a major chemical, oil and gas company, will run a series of ads in trade publications as part of its new "You Know Our Name" campaign for its in-dustrial chemicals divisions.

Startiog this month and running through November the teaser ads will be illus-trated by a 10-carat diamond worth $132,000 nestled among honest-to-goodness green shamrocks of Irish de-Meldrum & Fewsmith, the agency, had to work around armed guards from Tiffany when it shot the chotograph. You know that came.

'Denimachine' Sweepstakes

A "denimachine" sweepstakes-in which 10 highway cruising vans with denim upholsery will be awarded as first prizes—will be spon-sored by the Coca-Cola Company, beginning on Aug. 30. Co-sponsors are the Ford Motor Company and Levi 5trauss & Company,

Geared to attract teen-agers and "young adults," the sweepstakes will be promoted in magazines and Sunday supplements and on racio and television stations that appeal to that market. In addition, college news-papers and outdoor advents-

There will be 7,500 second prizes consisting of denim jeans outfits for men or women. However, no third prizes are being offered.

The new fall campaign, prepared by Ogilvy & Mather, is strictly for network televisioo, which iocludes commercials appearing oo 15 major sporting events on the fall schedule. The only print ad will be one in the Septem-

57 Recoup Losses And Get Diplomas From High School

August is an unusual month for a high school graduation, but 57 young men and womer who seemed headed for certain scholastic failure three years ago marched across the stage of Columbia University's Wollman Auditorium Sunday night to receive their diplomas.

The graduates had just completed Columbia's Project Double Discovery, an intensive program of remedial education and counseling.

When they were tested after their freshman year in focal high schools, most were found to be three years behind their grade reading level, and all displayed such a lack of motivation that none were expected to stay in school.

Not only did they stay in school, but they also spent school-year Saturdays and three six-week summer sessions in the program.

The result: 55 of the 57 are headed for college.

The program, started in 1965 and financed largely by the Federal Government at a cost of $300,000 a year, offers the participants - mostly low-in-come residents of Central Har- 18:36 (4) Celebrity Sweepstakes lem who attend Louis D. Branlem who attend Louis D. Brandeis and Benjamin Franklin

Everybody knew Watergate was only the tip of the iceberg. It wasn't just "a third-rate burglary." But nobody knew the real reason behind it. In the September issue of PLAYBOY, you'll learn what that reason is, and you'll also learn about the high-level, big-money dealings that spawned our biggest Governmental shake-up in history.

In a startling two-part story entitled The Puppet and the Puppetmasters, you'll read how the Hughes empire became a front for the Central Intelligence Agency. And then you'll find out how Howard Hughes used that alliance and his wealth to gain defense contracts and favorable legislation—and to help buy the Presidency for Richard Nixon.

You'll be stunned by the complex and under-the-table deals that mocked our electoral system and gave the highest offices in the land to the highest bidders.

And when you've absorbed all that, we'll tell you how the cover-up was accomplished and how the news media were misled in their efforts to uncover the complete story.

It's a detailed exposé pieced together from a vear of intensive digging by investigative reporters Larry DuBois and Laurence Gonzales. And it's all true. It's all documented. And it's only in the September issue of PLAYBOY. At your newsstand now.

If finding the inside story on Watergate in PLAYBOY surprises you, it shouldn't. Hardfare. An editorial mix that keeps more 17,000,000 readers involved and infor every single month. And while our rebenefit, so do our advertisers. Because same involvement is reflected in resp PLAYBOY's advertisers.

That's why our September issue is fourth consecutive issue to top our ad for the same period last year. And wh October issue will be our biggest Octo issue in years. And that's an inside-sto shouldn't surprise you at all.
